reaches The Lion and the Mouse: "This was what had long been looked for—the great American play."

There has been a rumor that this play with the soological title was a Christian Science play, the author having said that without the aid of Christian Science he could never have written it. But that seems scarcely worth considering as a merit or demerit of the piece. Whether the author of a play is a Roman Catholic, a Protestant or a Theosophist and whether he wrote it in a mood of spiritual exaltation or depression do not appear to me very vital facts. We can all recall a play written, it was claimed, under the same auspices and influences, but The Rulling Power was not powerful, and it ruled but a week or two. So the relation of Christian Science to the play is merely by the way.

The Lion and the Mouse, aside from the Christian Science phase of the matter and from the very patent fact that the fancy of Charles Klein, the author, had been fired by newspaper stories and editorials about John D. Rockefelier, is a clean-cut, powerful study of two spiendidly contrasting types. He portrays the man whose life inguided solely by business principles and he draws with firm, sure touch and masterful skill the woman of sympathy and tenderness, to whom the man of business is one of force and semi-brutality on one side and rapier-like keenness and brilliancy on the other. He makes his mouse by her wit stronger than the lion with his might. He does humanly, plausibly and gracefully what the author of W. H. Crane's last year's vehicle, Business is Business, did so vaguely and without conviction. Charles Klein interest, persuades and convinces. He has provided excellently drawn characters, suspense and memorable dialogue, and with half of these desirable elements plays have fulfilled the wish of the late Joseph Jefferson. They have lived long and propered.

The play is Edmund Breese, or it would be if the ware not for that pleasing new leading woman, evolved through much patience and hard work from a chorus girl in one of the Hoyt companies. Breese makes John Ryder a man of from Miss Elliston as Shirley Rossmore meits the iron into the pliableness of parental love, and eventually everybody is happy.

I saw Edmund Breese in the late Summer as Tom Grogan in The Bishop's Carriage. That he was equally convincing as the greatest financier in the world and its lowest thief setties for all time the question of his versatility. He is quite ready for starring—in fact, overripe in these days of premature fruitage.

Miss Elliston is well equipped with the most womanly voice we have heard on the stage for many a senson—a voice unusually low, but of excellent carrying power—with a wholesome beauty that calls for an application of the reduction receipts of Mrs. Jack Goureaud, Madame Lillian Nordica or Neils Bergen, and an intelligence that has brought her from chorus to consequence. Miss Marguerite St. John's part would have been improved by a little intensitying, and if Miss Johnson was instructed to be inconsequent she succeeded in obeying instructions.

A young woman who is employed in one of the rematic offices, returning from an erraid, found hat some one had called. That fact was testided to by a curious eard that lay on her deal, he card—that had been blank—bore the legend, D—n and other things." The young woman upped the card into a deak drawer, miling sendly. "Every Sitgreaves has been here," she lid, and Miss Sitgreaves afterward confessed. Miss Sitgreaves in noted for her epigrammatic yie. A few words suffice to picture any after.

relieped the card into a dealt drawer, smiling seriosity. Herery dispersaves has been here, dis said, and Miss dispersaves afterward confound.

Miss dispersaves afterward confound.

Miss dispersaves has been been, dispersave has been described and the completion. For instance, she adores been been dispersaved to the completion. For instance, she adores been been dispersaved and selected and to hand her a towed. I did, and she end of the completion of the was taking off make-up and saked and to hand her a towed. of the Sioux character to say: "Are squaws ever beautiful?"

"Indeed they are, while they are young," be answered. "But they grow old early. The first time I was ever in love it was with a squaw who was ten years older than I was."

Jessie Bonstelle has found a way to convert the hysteria of the power matines girls into sanity and profit. When she played at the Hariem Opera house two years ago a score of girls between sixteen and eighteen years old wrote her notes, invited her to tea, sent her candy and flowers and obstructed with their persons the stage door. Miss Bonstelle endured this admiration for a season, but when she returned as the leading woman of Proctor's it had diminished not a whit in her absence. Still the notes, crowded with superlatives, arrived. Btill there were invitations to tea so numerous that had she accepted a tenth of them there would never have been a matinee at Proctor's. The candy and flowers crowded her dressing room, and she was afraid to open the stage door suddenly lest one of her waiting admirers be tumbled into mud and ignominy. Sometimes the girls met her a block from the theatre and solemnity conducted her to the stage door. They caided themselves her "army." Miss Bonstelle signed. The army was getting on her herves. "Armies are all very well in times of war," she said, "but in this time of peace mine is just a little superfluous. What shall I do with it?"

She has solved the problem by dissolving the army, making it promise not to campaign at the stage door.

is just a littie superfluous. What shail I do with it? She has solved the problem by dissolving the army, making it promise not to campaign at the stage door, and in return she has given her aid and support to it in its new guise. It is now the Good Star Club. Miss Bonstelle's modesty prohibited their use of her name. The translation of it into Anglo-Saxon she found not objectionable. The object of the Good Star Club, formainy stated by Miss Bonstelle at its organization, is the study of plays. But the study of plays is a broad subject, as she outlined it. The text of the play is read and discussed. The biography of the author and the story of his development as a playwright are a part of the study. And if the piay be a costume one the costuming of that period is discussed. Often Miss Bonstelle shows them plates of the costumes and gives a lecture on the times and manners.

So the dissolved army has taken on the dignity of a club, which meets on Friday evenings and Sunday afternoons at the homes of its members. Once in a fortnight Miss Bonstelle spends an afternoon with the girls. Their admiration is a shade greater than before, but is less riotously manifested. Though still somewhat stage struck, they are the better, Miss Bonstelle congraturates berself, for being piny informed.

The Matinee Girl sends greetings to the traveling players. She does not beneve that the sun of interest and all human worth rises and seis in those who happen to be playing to Brushaway audiences, and is anxious to know of the fortunes of those who are journeying in the land of one-night stanus. She has before anvited letters from them and she receives in the morning mail many messages from these friends. She would be giad to receive more of them. Nothing that is a part of the life of an ambitious actor, whatever all "luck," is uninteresting to her. And in this connection she would inquire the whereabouts of that facetious and very human correspondent who called, said he was a type and named himself? "Address All Agents."

The Lambs are in a state of supreme complacency over the success of their gambol with Prince Louis of Battenberg. The Lambs took their usual liberties with the personality of their visitor. He who had been "Your Serene Highness" to every one eise in town was to the irrevergnt Lambs only "the bold, bad Briton." Instead of hotowing to him they danced on the table at which we sat. And Battenberg was charmed, so charmed that he did not leave the fold till sunrise. Ordinarily he had to be invited to make speeches. Before he had been with the Lambs a quarter of an hour he claimed the privilege. In self-defense from the volley of jokes and puns mercilessly discharged at him he said: "Any old man can be a prince, but he must work like the devil to be an admiral."

A CONRIED SCHOOL OF ACTING.

Mr. Couried has been aroused, presumably through the published criticisms of Mr. Clarke and the National Art Theatre Society, to announce his purpose of establishing a dramatic school or conservatoire in connection with his new "national" theatre. Speaking of his much discussed use of the word "national," the Herr Director says that he does not wish it to be taken too literally, as the word "international" might better express the true spirit of the enterprise.

With regard to his theatrical achool one of the

A RETURNED NATIVE'S IMPRESSIONS.

Nothing is more interesting to an American returning from a long exile abroad than changes in the artistic conditions of his native land, and no feature of those changes is any more interesting than that relating to the theatre, which has aways been and always will be such a factor in education, cultivation and refinement.

When it is realized that New York probably has more theatres in proportion to the population than any city in the world, and that in a country where only two per cent. are habitual theatregoera, its principal metropolis supports something like fifty theatres, with more to come, a fact proving that the drama in America is a good investment, the power of the play in modern American life cannot be overestimated.

The first impression that one gets after a long absence is of the greed of the American public for diversion, and the next is the difficulty that managers find in antisfying it, and more powerful than either of these impressions is that of the extravagance of the American producers, the youth and beauty of the American producers, the youth and beauty of the American actresses and the painful lack of skill commonly known as technique displayed by many prominent piayers who enjoy a fame only earned abroad by reality artistic achievements and often awarded in New York to mere personal charm.

The greed of the people to be merely amused is not new, nor is it confined to this country any more than to this period. No great actor who ever wrote his memoirs has falied at some time in his carser to record with pain and mortification that the crowd ran after some white elephant around the corner, while he, the artist, was playing to empty benches. But the difficulty that managers find in satisfying the public to-day is often the direct result of their own extravagance in giving their patrons productions so gorgeous as to cause mental and visual dyspepsia. To the foreigner this seems the most disastrous of all the tendencies of the American heatre, and the refrontery to deny. On this one point al the average American pinyer, he has to acknowledge that the stage in America is rich in hopeful material.

Paris, the great theatrical centre of the world, has not to-day one practicing young actor or actress to step into the shoes of Bernhardt, Bartet, Jeanne Granier, Rejane, or Mounet-Suily, Couquelin, Gultry or Tarrieve. The French author who writes to-day a big role for a young woman is at his wits' end to get his piece properly done for the lack of a juvenile woman anything above mediocrity, while New York numbers scores of young and pretty women of temperamental possibilities who are only waiting for the part that is to make them. This lack of the French stage, and it is a serious one, explanas very logically the dearth of plays there of late which suit America. The few famous writers almost never do a play for a young actress.

But there is a feature of the theatre in New York that is even more encouraging than the promising material shown in the young blood, and that is, in spite of their love for mere diversion, in spite of their tastes for extravagance in the theatre, in spite of their tendency to be caught by the way of the eye, a really gifted player is sure to win recognition, and a sterling play, no matter how serious, does not fail, no matter how much competition it has to meet.

Out of several examples in proof of the former statement none is more impressive to one who has been long away from America than the triumph of Mrs. Fishe, for it is a tribute to a genius who possesses none of the qualities by which so many cany successes have been made here. Americans are said to demand and adore beauty in their stars. Mrs. Fishe is unique, but not beautiful. She possesses no single one of the superficial qualities which have turned a score of women that could be named into "headliners." Her success has been won by the force of that illuminating spark which define definition or description, and that success proves that the American public may be found in the fact that a manager only needs to Naturally I shall have a school of acting as a necessary complement to such a theatre. Losk at what mit opera school has due. The usual operatic chorus singer (man or woman) who applies to me is forty or forty-five years old. In the haphasard way is which they have to win their experience it takes them that time to learn their repertoire of some twenty-five parts. But in the case of my opera young and good looking girls are carefully drilled in chorus work of completent tracters. One who wishes American actors well cannot but regret that some modification of this system does not hold in New York. It would seem that such a method, which would enable managers to test plays, ought to be welcome to authors and public ailks.

REFLECTIONS

Among these who sailed on the New York in a Saturday for London were Mabel Lorrell, with The Duchess of Dantzig company, and Lily Larrell, late of The Girl from Kay's company.

After having opened negotiations for Dorol Vernon of Haddon Hail, Ernest Shipman, act on behalf of Kana, Shipman and Colvin, to train from Portiand, Ore, to New York to cithe deal. In the meantime the play was solid Manager Williamson, of Australia, for that corry. It has made a favorable impression also England, and as a consequence the American values soared to a price at which Mr. Shipmany it is impossible for any manager to make a paying proposition.

Carrie Bridewell, the American contraits.

Carrie Brideweil, the American contraito, has made a successful appearance in grand opera at Vienna and has been engaged for a series of per-formances at Oliwetz.

Frank Cooley has secured on royalty Edwin T Emery's play, An Indiana Romance, for his West-ern tour.

As Ye Sow, which has already been produ in Boston and Chicago, will open in New Y. at the Garden Theatre on Christmas Day, s ceeding Robert Mantell,

One hundred and thirty deaf mutes attended the matinee performance of king Lear by Robert Manteil on Saturday, Iec. 2. They were all supplied with copies of the play by Alexander Paca, of the Doaf Austes' Register, who is interested in aiding them to make a study of the Shakesperean tragedles.

Trigenes.

Ticket apeculators bought out practically the entire orchestra of the Liberty lineatre for the opening night of A Fair Exchange, posing as members of the Larchmont Yacht Cub, of which Henry Blossom, Jr., is a member. The management discovered the ruse and made an entirely new issue of tickets, printed on cardboard of a different color.

Midshipman J. S. Sweeney and other junior officers of the navy who recently attended the performance at the Majestic Theatre made a return of courtesies on Thankagiving Day by entertaining fifteen garis from Wonderland at tea on the battleship Maine.

Louis Mann and Clara Lipman will appear about Jan. I under the Shubert management in a new comedy written by Miss Lipman herself and entitled June Bon-Bon. Talis will be their first appearance together since they produced The Real Kings.

Owing to the serious ilineas of Effic Elisier and upon the advice of her doctors, Jules Murry has coosed the season of the Effic Ensier company and is bringing the members back to New York from Texas.

Oiga Nethersole has transmitted by cable to Queen Alexandra's fund for England's unemployed $2,317, the receipts from two matines pertormances of The Lapyrinth, one in Montreal and the other in Toronto.

George Edwardes is reported to have secured the English rights to Henry Blossom's A Fair Exchange, with the intention of making the play over into a musical comedy.

A second company of The Lion and the Mouse has been organized and will open at Powers The-atre, Chicago, during the coming February.

William A. Brady is arranging a revival of oucceaust's The Octoroon, waich will be presented in New York about the last of January. The Savoy Theatre is to have two new exits in the rear of the auditorium and is also to be supplied with additional fire escapes.

A ticket taker at the Thalia Theatre has been fined $150 for admitting boys under sixteen years of age to the gailery. The management paid the fine.

E. H. Fitzhugh, business manager of Buster Brown, and Lucise D. Hopkins, of the same com-pany, were married at the Episcopai Church, Cir-cleville, O., on Nov. 9.

Laura Davis recently appeared in a production of The School Girl in Manketo, Minn. Miss Davis through liness has been unable to return to the stage this season, and this performance in her home city was notably successful.

The Shuberts announce that W. H. Thompson will become a star under their management. Mr. Thompson's first vehicle will be a new version of 'the Bishop's Mova, entitled The Bishop, and his first appearance in the play will be at the Garrick Theatre, St. Louis, on Christmas Day.

Beatrice Burke, after retirement for a season, has returned to the stage and will hereafter be known as Beatrice F. Mackay.

Christine Hudson, prima donna, who was compelled to retire from the cast of Hamiin and Mitchell's Babes in Toyland company at Youngstown, O., several weeks ago on account of illness, is still confined to her home in Chicago. Miss Hudson will not be able to resume her work this season.

Walters Looped Lane Footman Leopod Lane Footman Leopod Lane Footman M. L. Bassett Insipidity is the chief characteristic of this Ciyde Fitch play, more strongly marked because of some striking situations and some viris dialogue, like lumps of ginger in a half-sweetened pudding. It was written for and produced by Madame Modjeska some ten years ago under the title of Mistress Betty and proved at that time an insufficient vehicle for the star. In preparing the work for Viola Allem Mr. Fitch has made some revisions and has supplied a happy ending—in the original Mistress Betty dies in the lodging house. The comedy element has been developed at the expense of the emotional, and the character of Mistress Betty made to better fit the temperament of its present portrayst. But the play leaves the impression of tastelessness. The plot is as devoid of ruggedness as the patched and powdered galishts who move through it, and the characters, with two or three exceptions, seem artificial beyond even the consideration of their customs and costumes.

The plot, in brief, tells the story of Betty Singleton, actress in the time of George III, who at the height of her popularity marries a Duke with hereditary bad habits. The new-made Duchess discovers her husband to be a drunkard and within a year after her marriage leaves him believing him to be in love with his cousin, Lady Charlotte. After two years' separation the Duke offers to take her back to his hone, but, still be lieving he loves Charlotte, she compromises her own honor to give him an ercuse for divorcing her so that he may be happy. She hides herself in the garret of a cheap lodging house, where she is discovered by the Duke, starving and almost insane.

The first act takes place in the green-room of the theatre, on the night of Betty's forewell ner.

is discovered by the Duke, starving and almost insane.

The first act takes place in the green-room of the theatre, on the night of Betty's farewell performance, and it is here that Miss Allen has the best opportunity for exhibiting her charm as a high comedy actress. Her gayety, her anxiety about her appearance, her mingled grief at leaving her stage life and joy at marrying the man she loves, and finally her choking farewell speech before a second curtain, with the real audience made so take part in the play, compel the greatest admiration for her work in this character. In the second act, the home of Betty the Duchess, the action moves so slowly toward a foreseen climax that Miss Allen's work seems lacking in sparkle and in conviction. Her scene with the actors and author, who have come for her decision about a play, is done naturally, but her refusal of Lord Phillips' proposition does not carry weight.

The setting of the third act, an inn garden overlooking a stretch of river where "practical" swans are swimming, is a picture beautiful enough to draw applause on its own account. In this act Miss Allen has the strongest scene, one that might be made ludicrous by over playing, but which she plays with the right degree of emotion. In the fourth act Miss Allen's fine art prevents a long monologue from becoming too senti-vents a long monologue from becoming too sentimental.

Isabel Irving as Mistress Roxana shares honors with the star. The role is that of a thoughtless selfish you'g actress and ir played with charming skill. Mrs. Fannie Addison Pitt finds a wealth of comedy in the role of the Dowager Duchess. Alice Wilson is convincing as Lady Charlotte. Robert Drouet as the Duke of Malmshury has a struggle to make the character more than an artificial blackguard, but succeeds in giving it a semblance of manilness. Ferdinand Gottschalk, appearing only in the last act, gives a finished performance of an Old Man Lodger. Harrison Hunter plays Lord Phillips, the only really human character in the play, in such a way as to win constant approval. Hasnard Short does fairly well with the part of Lord Algernon Pairfax. Charles D. Pitt as Harry Bent, C. Leslie Allen as Mr. McLaughlin, and Maurice W. Stenart as an Author, are fully satisfactory. Harold De Becker does some rather clever work as the Call Boy in the first act. The other characters are adequately played.

Max in his effort to do the most honorable thing married his mistress, who, however, lived only a short time to enjoy her triumph. It must be understood that Marianne did not setule down with George until after Max had married the woman in the case. Five years elapsed between the events of the first and second acts. Max now being a widower came to his former wife with a demand that Louis should be allowed to live with him at least half of the year and Marianne found herself obliged to concede the point. Louis fell desperately ill and Marianne was forced to go to Max's chateau to nurse her child. Their mutual solicitude for the child, their joint vigils at his bedside, their silent communion reawakened the fire of their ancient devotion. On the night when his son's recovery was definitely assured. Max gained admission to his wife's chamber and—the curtains were visely drawn in the nick of time. Marianne in the fourth act tersely informed George that, no matter how much he was ready to pardon, she could never again be his wife, and George manfully gave her back her freedom upon her swearing to commit suiteide rather than again be delivered into the power of Max. George and Max "had it out," man to man, Max absolutely refusing to give any promise whereby he should surrender his claims to Marianne. George literally precipitated a conclusion by tumbling both Max and himself from a narrow bridge into a roaring cataract, which disaster left the audience profoundly sorry—for those two gentlemanly husbands. The moral seemed to be that if a woman were sufficiently indiscret to have pure a fairly acceptable father—a calcing size of his presence of as on a brilliant marching song, "The Concarne Vivandieres," shows that she has a voice suitable for musical comedy. Almeda Potter in the small role of Yvonne sings pleasantly the solo part of the second act's opening chorus, "Sombrero." Theodore Friebus as General donzales, Albert From as Captain Gattling, and Charies Chappelle as Bitter Creek Benson do well with speaking parts that demanded no singing. A good word should be said for the collective good looks of the show girls and the sprightliness of the chorus. that he never became maudin in dailying with the pathetic failacy. At the very conclusion Mantell again had fit occasion to assert his powers. When he appeared bearing Cordella in his arms the crowded house was hushed under the appailing speil of tragic fatalism. That the storm scene was not more effective was the fault neither of the scenery, the thunder, the lightning, nor the actors. This scene has always been a problem and presumably it always will be. Mr. Mantell read with ease and understanding.

Not to mince words, Cordella did little but pose, for which defect her only defense is that there is little else to be done. Marie Booth Russell is a splendid woman, apparently half Amanon and half Juno, but somehow her presence does not tally with any mental picture of Cordella. So to speak, Mrs. Mantell is too large and imposing to be honestly demure, and Cordella lost a crown through her overplus of girlish frankness. When it came to bringing her onto the stage she made an armful even for her husband. Goneril and Regan, impersonated respectively by Margaret Gray and Emily Dodd, thoroughly deserved the anathemas their old father heaped upon their heads. Guy Lindsley was an excellent Edmund but perhaps he seemed better than his legitimate brother Edgar, who was impersonated by Harry Leighton, simply because Shakespeare made the villain so much more subtle and intrepid than the hero. Edwin Holland was not a very impressive Cornwall, but Alexandria Kenrney proved to be imposed upon by the scheming cruelty of his own wife. Before Mr. Kearney uttered a word it was evident that he was no member of the conspiracy and that his hands would finally be the instruments of retribution. Frank Peters as the hlustering and loyal Kent had an aggressive tendency to modernize his part, and still he played it with a warmth and bravadot that hit the popular fancy. The philosophic fool of the tragedy is the most difficult jester in all the Shakespeare and satisfactory fool in King Lear, wherefore one should hesitate to condemn Edwin

V. Furgeson, who is well known here, was handicapped by having very little to do. Sinksa Sullivan was a capable Bitchie, and Ed Donelly made the most of Dr. Perrin. Coming Through the Rye 4-9.

The Politard Juvenile Opera co. opened to a big house 27 for their return engagement and received a warm welcome from the many of the company of the most of the circus cliri. The opening bill was The Runnway Girl, and during the week they appeared in The Circus cliri. The Bellie of New York. The Geisha. The Lady Slavey, and Pinafore. To speak of the children individually would be almost unfair, for they are all so clever one hesitates where to bestow most praise. They will always be welcome in Montreal. In Gay New York 4-9.

Mons. Le Directeur was the bill at the Nouvenutes 4-9. It is one of the most laughable comedies seen here in a long time, though the characters in it are a very improper lot. Mr. Lefrancais as the amorous director and Mile. Gondy as the firstations widow shared honors. M. Prevust as the honest office seeker, Madame Bienfait as his wife, Madame Piet as his morfer-ip-law, and Messur. Petibon and Despias all offered capital character sketches. Le Detour 4-9, in which M. Duval will make his debut.

At the National La Fille Maudite, an interesting melodrama, is the bill.

The High School Girls are at the Boyal. A good show, the Flying Bayards being the headliner.

Louis James appeared at the Willis Wood Nov. 2620, presenting Virginius and Ingomar to good business. The appiause that greeted his efforts was most genuine and was prolonged until several curtain-calls were responded to. A thoroughly capable co. was in support of the star, of whom Aphle James. Norman Hackett, and James Young deserve special praise.
The productions were insidemely mounted and costuned. The School Girl 30-2. The Rollicking Girl 36. Floresore Roberts 7-9.

Hap Ward, formerly of the team of Ward and Vokes, made his individual stellar appearance here at the Grand 28-2 in a new musical piece entitled The Graftser. The vehicle is built along the same lines as those Ward and Vokes have used in former years, being a composition of music and songs with plenty of fun thrown in between times. A large chorus was a strung feature. In Old Kentucky 3-9.

The Smart Set held the boards at the Auditorium

The Dainty Duchess Extravagansa co. appeared at the Greenwall Theatre 26-2 in The Duchess in the Country. The co. consists of the usual extravagansa features, with an array of good seeiesry, helliant contumes and handsome women. Some of the vandeville features are fair. Clark's Runaway Giris 3-9.

The French Opera co. under the management of Thomas Broulatour, opened what promises to be one of the most brilliant seasons in its history. The opening hill was Les Huguenots and a crowded and a didred as first-class, but this is accounted for by the traditional nervousness which accompanies first performance. Manon was given 23 and Faust 25.

OMAHA.

At Boyd's Theatre The School Girl opened a half week's engagement Nov. 25 to a fine house and made an excellent impression. Florosca 29. Florosca Bloberts 1, 2. Jane Kennark 3-6.

The state of the s Gillette Safety The Appreciation of Time by busy men is shown in the ever increasing popularity of the Gillette Safety Razor. One can save at least 20 minutes a day-by renouncing the oarber habit. This means a good many days in a year. It's not only time saved, but money as well; for with a "Gillette" a shave costs but about 1/4 of a cent. The man who owns a "Gillette" (and there are now hundreds of thousands in use) also has the satisfaction of knowing that he has a smooth, clean shave. He takes pride in the fact he did it himself with a "Gillette," and that only his own hands and his own implements came in contact with his face. He rejoices that he is immune from cuts and scratches. If you have a friend who is not the fortunate possessor of a "Gillette," you will find it to be an

IDEAL HOLIDAY GIFT.

THE LONDON STAGE.

The Little Father of the Wilderness-The Mountain Climber-Holiday Plans.

(Special Correspondence of The Mirror.) LONDON, Nov. 25.

nake room for that play in a week or two. The with R ew play is an adaptation by Marie Tempest's nuband. Charles Edward Stuart Cosmo Gordon a few ill in Park.

The long-closed Princess in Oxford Street, a nec famous home of meiodrama, long ago senred (but never yet used) by your wholesale npressario. Mr. Keith, is to be partially rebuilt or reopening early in the new year with a new rams by George R. Sims and Arthur Shirley. The said Shirley has just written for the London lippodrome a new and successful travesty, entited Among the Stars, with lyrics by H. Chance lewton.

Hippodrome a new and successful travesty, entitled Among the Stars, with lyrics by H. Chance Newton.

The Kendals finish their season at the St. James in a week or two. The theattre will then be taken over by William Mollison and a strong company, who will produce for the first time in London their present big touring success—namely, your native-made, fine adaptation of Ian Maciaren's Beside the Boanie Brier Bush.

This play can only be given there until February, as Manager George Alexander will then want his own theatre for the production of Arthur Wing Pinero's new play, which is still entitled His House in Order.

Notwithstanding sundry oversealous press agents' reports of late diffys, the run of Lady Madcap at the Prince of Wales' will cease to-night. It has had a pretty good inning—over a year, in fact—and it is still running, with several companies on tour. Marie Studholme being the principal member of the principal crowd.

Next Saturday night Manager Arthur Collins will withdraw Hall Caine's drama. The Prodigal Son, from Drury Lane in order to prepare for the pantomime. The pantomime, which is on the subject of "Cinderella," is to be concected by the said Collins. Sir Francis Burnand, editor of Pusch, and J. Hickory Wood, old Drury's regular (or resident) panto-librettist, who has just written a very useful and highly entertaining life of poor little Dan Leno. It is full of qualnt exveriences, and ditto sayings of the not yet replaced lovesbie little jester, for whom the said Wood wrote so many excellent pantomime parts.

To-night at the Adelphi we are to see Manager Otho Stuart's grand revival of A Midsummer Night's Dream, with a splendid cast headed by Oscar Asche and his wife, Lily Brayton. To the dress rehearsal yesterday the kindly manager invited several schoolfuls of poor children, who enjoyed the beautiful fairy show immensely.

To-morrow (Sunday) there are several fixtures—all just after church time. These include the Eccentric Club's annual dinner at the Hotel Cecil and the Stage Society's production of Dodo. adapted by Novelist E. F. Benson from his story of the same name.

On Monday and Tuesday we are in for a group of Oirish plays, begorra, written, d'ye moind, by such raie Holbermian barrds as Lady Gregory, J. M. Synge, and the mystic-sowied W. B. Yents. Well, to the stall-front, arrmed wid his best society shillelagh will be found that most pathriotic pathriot, The O'GAWAIN.

NOTES OF THE LEAGUE.

At the literary meeting of the Professional Woman's League yesterday afternoon Edmund Russell, the well-known lecturer and authority on Oriental subjects, delivered a lecture on "Ruddha." He described at considerable length the difference between Brahminism and Buddhism, apeaking of the long pilgrimages that the Brahmins make all over ludia to the different tempies of worship, thereby attaining a college education by wide contact with humanity. Their worship is constant prayer. They strive to become a part of the universal mind and spirit. The repetition of certain words and phrases is to them the soul of art. Buddhism, he said, still has more followers than any other religion. Mr. Russell then read selections from "The Light of Asia" with fine enunciation and perfect elocution.

Gustave Beckur piayed several piano numbers very delightfully, including his own composition, "Along the Brook."

The annual bazaar will be held at the Waldorf-Asjoria Dec. 14-16. Contributions are coming in rapidly and a successful affair is anticipated.

SANTA CLAUS BEGINS EARLY.

logd obsourne and Austin Strong and was very neatily written.

The Mountain Climber had been adapted, and clerwely adapted, to boot, by Cosmo Hamilton from a German play called Der Hoch Townst. In this Comedian Wright exploited his ever funny farcical method as a sort of a Tartarian who pretends to have been away performing wondrous deeds in Alpine ascents when he has never been near the place. Of course Nemesis sets in and threatens to stay until the little liar, is compelled by stress of accident and pressurer to confess all. This was admirably played, not only by Huntley Wright, but by a strong company, including Lottle Venne as the taradiddie-telling tourist's wife.

Poor Charles Damby is still terribly ill after his awful operation, but Seymour-Hicks' fund, which is being run for him by the Referee, In happily going strong.

Bir Charles Wyndham has just postponed his long-contemplated American tour owing to the big success of Herbert Henry Davies' new play, Captain Drew on Leave. The Knight is making arrangements to transfer this play to another theart eat Christmaa, as he has let the New to Julia Nelisma and Fred Terry again. Julia and Fred Terry again. Santa Claus made an early start this year by making his appearance at Proctor's Fifty-eighth Street Theatre on Saturday afternoon last, after the matinee. His coming had been well advertised, and 1,500 children were in the house when the curtain fell. The stage was set to show an old-fashioned chimney, from which Santa Claus emerged, bearing a big bag containing a doll for every girl in the house and a whip for every boy. The children passed across the stage in single file, and the entire 1,500 were supplied with their presents in less than half an hour. The Santa Claus matinees will be continued every week until the Saturday before Christman.

STETSON'S UNCLE TOM'S CABIN.

Under the heading. "Becord-Breaking Andience." the Peoria (III.) "Journal" says of Stetson's "Big Double Uncle Tom's Cabin company." of which Leon Washburn is proprietor and William Kibble manager. "The Grand Opera House held the largest crowd that ever entered its doors yesterday afternoon at the matinee given by Stetson's Uncle Tom's Cabin company. Two hundred neopie were turned away, every seat in the house, including the galleries, being filled. In the evening the house was again crowded and Peoria theatregoers demonstrated the fact that they are not tired of Uncle Tom's Cabin. The performance given by the Stetson company was the best ever seen in Peoria. The details of the familiar old play were worked out admirably, and the acting and settings were consistent in every respect. **

TO CORRESPONDENTS

The Christmas number of THE MIRI The Christmas number of THE MIRROR combined with the regular number for that week, will be published on Tuesday, Dec. 19, and will bear the date of Saturday, Dec. 23. The final forms of this double number will go to press on Priday and Saturday, Dec. 15 and 16, and correspondents must for ward letters for that publication so that they will reach this office not later than Thursday, Dec. 14. Correspondents will also note that the two numbers of THE MIRROR following the Christmas number will also go to press the Christmas number will also go to press shead of the usual time, on account of the holidays—Christmas and New Year's Day— and thus, that their letters for three weeks in succession must be mailed, to reach this ster than Dec. 14, 21 and 28, re-

TO ADVERTISERS.

The final pages of the regular section of the Ohristmas Minnon will go to press on Friday and Saturday. Dec. 15 and 16, and no advertisement for the regular section of that number can be taken later than noon of the latter day. To insure good positions in the Ohristmas section of this number, advertisements should be forwarded at once. For two weeks following the publication of the Christmas Minnon, this journal will go to press in advance of the usual time, owing to the fact that Christmas and New Year's Day occur on Mandays. No advertisement for either of those numbers can be taken later than noon of the Saturdays, respectively, of Dec. 23 and 30. The final pages of the regular section of

AN AUTHORS' TRUST.

Norming definite has of late come out of Paris relative to the controversies between the French Society of Dramatic Authors and various managers who were said som ne ago to be about to institute a cont with them, the contest being influenced by one or two bankers who had become interested in theatrical property and who were inclined to form a "trust" in opposition to what they called "the authors' trust," but one incident has lately come to light that ent has intely come to light that newly shows the almost illimitable power d by the French dramatists as a society, at least with reference to the produc tion of modern plays.

There has always been more or less com There has always been more or less com-plaint that dramatic authors, as a class, in of that faith. At a recent meeting of the other countries have been at the mercy of Lucas County Federation of Catholic Sotheatrical managers, but in France it long cieties this was adopted:

Fully aware of the refining and or turned, and that the authors are supre That they may have abused their powers once those powers had become arbitrarily assured, is natural; for all monopolists whether of material things or in intellectual fields, are prone to take advantage of their positions. It may be that the traditions of times when managers in France abused their powers with reference to their writers have influenced succeeding genera-tions of writers to retaliate on occasion, if only to show that places have been re-

The latest incident in Paris relates to a quarrel between M. RICHEMOND, manager of the Folies Dramatiques, and the Authors' Society, and one of the Paris newspapers, the Matin, has taken up the manager's side of the case. M. RICHEMOND wrote to the newspaper that he felt compelled to shut up his theatre, and thus be under the necessity of discharging his artists and employes, "because a number of old gentlemen had decided that he could not produce a piece by a member of the Authors' Society." He had planned to put on MICHAEL CARRE'S play, Volcan d'Amour, but that author had been threatened by the society and finally informed M. RICHEMOND that he could not have the piece. What seems to be an echo of the threatened troubles a year or so ago, already suggested-the purpose of several bankers to run theatres in which they hold large interests without reference to the claims of the Anthors' Society—is found in the cause alleged by M. RICHEMOND for the opposition to him by the society. His explanation of what he terms a "boycott" is that "it has been put in force under the childish pretext that I am using money belonging to a person who is not pleasing to certain members of the Authors' Society." In the circumstances the question would arise, is this "person" one of the afore said bankers?

Continuing his plaint, M. RICHEMON says: "Thus, by methods unworthy of a great country, I am reduced to the position of one being permitted to produce only the plays of authors who have been dead at least fifty years." The manager's appeal to the Matin was made, he says, after he had appealed to the courts without redress, which would suggest that the Authors' Soclety has thus far done nothing illegal in its prohibition under the copyright laws of France. The part taken by the Matin in the controversy is interesting. That journal thinks the Authors' Society "wants to place itself above the law and that it is of opinion that human beings should be fettered forever." This is the essence of a dable sentiment for universal liberty as a concrete proposition, perhaps, but in the specific case of the dramatic author it would seem that behind any ill-founded animosity on the part of the Authors' Society there rests a well-founded desire, based on law, that an author shall receive con tion for his work and that the children of his brain shall be protected from kidnap The Matin has gone to unu pioning of the man ngths in its cham for it is said that it has furnished a staff of men to write a play-perhaps plays for the aggrieved RICHEMOND, through its "desire to render a service to the cause of theatrical liberty." Does this smack of that sort of journalism known here that provides everything that even an eccentric public may want-or at least promis provide everything?

A SIGNIFICANT INTEREST.

THERE are a multitude of tokens that the theatre to-day has a more general human appeal than at any time in its history. All classes of persons frequent the playhouse, as their tastes are appealed to and as their desire for amusement or instruction may impulse them.

Never before, it may be said, have per sons associated with churches of one or another denomination shown so keen an interest in the stage or more concern for its onor and dignity. This is so because more and more the theatre is coming to be rec-ognized as an institution that appeals to the imagination, satisfies desires that no other institution can satisfy and fills an asth want while it merely amuses, so varied and fascinating are its manifestations.

When, therefore, a great church body makes the theatre the subject of a special study and a well-defin ed purpose it m much in the way of things to be accom-plished by intelligent persons for the bene-fit of the stage, and thus for the benefit of all others who love the stage.

Thus it is unusually significant that the Catholic Federation of Lucas County, Ohio, in which county the city of Toledo is situ-ated, has adopted a plan to purify the tone of the theatre from a local viewpoint and Suence of clean and elevating dramatic performances, and warned by the recent abuses of the stage in plays which outrage common decency and religious convictions, the Federation of Catholic Societies of Lucas County respectfully call the attention of all the members of the federated societies to the great work of purifying and elevating the tone of the stage. This can be accom-

By not patronising any play that offer gainst morality or religion or ridicules any de-omination or nationality.

By carefully inquiring in doubtful cas ce is in keeping with this first er the perform

By withdrawing all patronage from theatres, managers, companies and actors that make the stage a school of scandal.

By demanding dramas of literary excellence and clean sentiment and not allowing good dramas to be defiled by indecent costuming or "by-plays."

By demanding all public advertisements that y denouncing all public advertisements that and or corrupt the hearts of the young or attract attention to salacious subjects.

By trying to obtain from the theatre proper re creation; the stage should not be a school of dis-sipation or of immoderate pleasure seeking, but ent, occasionally enjoyed as a legitimate recreation.

By carefully guarding the young, lest by at tending vulgar and low "shows" they acquire the baneful hankering after the theatre. As we feel assured that this earnest effort of the Federation of Catholic Societies will be wel-ed and seconded by all well-meaning citizens of Toledo and Lucas County, whose noble and public spirited endeavors contribute to the real happiness and uplifting of the community, there fore be it resoived, that publication of these reso s in the city papers be requested.

The foregoing contains nothing of prohibition or criticism that any one of the theatre honestly concerned in the welfare of the stage can logically object to. It is for the interest of all associated with the theatre to appeal to and satisfy the greatest number possible among the people, and the welfare of all is the better conserved by the more general support of the stage by the public that its saner conduct inspires. In cidentally, it may be remarked that times have indeed changed when one may read such admissions of the legitimacy of the theatre's appeal pronounced by a church body as are contained in this formal wish and purpose to co-operate in order that the theatre may be made better.

AN OLD FRENCH COMEDY.

THE PARCE OF MASTER PIERRE PATRICES. A transla-tion from the old French by Richard Holbrook, with woodcuts reproduced from the Paris edition of 1480. Boston: Houghton, Miffin and Company.

Not the least interesting part of this we hich contains the first English translation hich contains the first English translation et ade of this most famous of the ancient Frei ress, is the introductory chapter relative to story of the early French mysteries, moraliti-tities and farces, and more particularly trac-te record of Pierre Patelin. The farce was of the record of pierre Patelin. The farce was of the crast of the crast of the crast translative tracks. nsiation ever scient French elative to the the record of Pierre Patelin. The farce was composed by some unknown author, cratainly the greatest dramatic genius of his era, at some time shortly before the year 1469. The first English play of importance founded on the original idea was The Viliage Lawyer, performed at the Haymarket in 1787, and its last descendant was The Mutton Trial, used as part of a minstrel show at the American Theatre, in New York, during 1863. The farce relates how the most rascally and uncorapulous of mediaval French advocates was finally outwitted by apparently the least intelligent of all his clients—a shepherd who followed to the letter his adviser's direction to answer all questions with the one syllable, "Baa." Besides being intensely amusing in itself, the translation is a valuable addition to dramatic literatura. If one fault is to be found with the work it is that the translator has gone to extremes in his use of twentieth century slang to reproduce ancient fibes and witticisms.

WILLIAMS.—Here is a portrait of Fritz Williams, who is prominent in the company that will appear in Leo Ditrichstein's new play, Before and After, at the Manhattan Theatre, beginning next Monday.

FITCH.—Clyde Fitch has signed a contract for a play of modern New York life in which Blanche Walsh will appear next Autumn at the new Astor Theatre.

PALMAY.—Ilka Palmay, a Hungarian tress and singer, will appear at the Irving Place Theatre next month in an operetta en-titled Heisses Blut.

MANSFIELD.—Richard Mansfield has enenjoyed a remarkable engagement at San Francisco in his repertoire. While there Mr. Mansfield delivered an address in the Greek Theatre of the University of California, at the invitation of the faculty.

DITRICHSTRIN.—Leo Ditrichstein, author of Before and After, which is to be presented at the Manhattan Theatre on Dec. 12, treated the members of the company to a Thanksgiving dinner at his home in Stamford, Conn. Robert Hunter, who has purchased "Lew" Dockstader's interest in the piece, and is now its sole owner, was the guest of nonor.

Wilson.—On Thanksgiving Day Frances Wilson, the daughter of Francis Wilson, was married at New Rochelle to Charles Huard, a French actor and cartoonist, whom she met while studying music in Paris. Mr. Wilson, who was playing in Indianapolis, had no idea that his daughter was to be married, as he had advised a year's delay. However, he sent a telegram saying, "Thanksgiving blessings and foreiveness." a telegram saying, and forgiveness."

WORTHING.—Frank Worthing is to appear as leading man with Ellis Jeffreys in the pro-duction of Alfred Sutro's The Fascinating Mr. Vandervelt, beginning on Jan. 22.

Mr. Vanderveit, beginning on Jan. 22.

BERNHARDT.—Sarah Bernhardt has purchased the acting rights of a one-act tragedy by Constant Lounsberry, entitled L'Escarpolette (The Swing). Though at present residing in New York Miss Lounsberry's home is in Paris, where she is a member of the French Association of Dramatic Authors, and one of her comedies has recently been performed by Coquelin. It is undecided whether or no Madame Bernhardt will present the piece before her return to France.

BARRYMORE.—Ethel Barrymore will short-ly begin rehearsals of Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire, the new J. M. Barrie play, which was re-cently produced in London with Ellen Terry in the leading role.

BERTON.—Pierre Berton, who came to this country to witness the American production of his play. La Belle Marseillaise, sailed for France with his wife on Thankagiving Day.

JONES.—Henry Arthur Jones has cabled ne hundred dollars from London to Daniel rohman as his contribution to the Palmer estimonial.

Kunkitk.—Jan Kubelik arrived on the Ameriks on Nov. 27 and was met by a delegation of fifty Bohemians, representing the twenty-five Bohemian societies in New York. Since his last visit to America he has learned to speak English fluently.

GILLETTE. — William Gillette closed his fourth London season at the Duke of York's Theatre on Dec. 2 and will sail for America to-morrow (Wednesday). Mr. Gillette has announced he will never again appear professionally in England.

LTONA.—Edmund Lyons gave a luncheon on Friday last to several friends in the Proctor company in celebration of his fiftieth year on the stage.

Inwin.—May Irwin prepared and cooked a Thanksgiving dinner for her company at Dayton, Ohio. While in Cincinnati she telegraphed for a kitchen, dining-room and a supply of provisions. The dinner was eaten between the matinee and evening performances.

The quick waning of the fame of the actor after retirement, if the actor be not of the first class, is shown in the little attention paid to the death of Daniel Bandmann, who once was something of a figure in the theatre.

It is but a few seasons ago, during the stock system at the Murray Hill Theatre, under Manager Donnelly, that Bandmann appeared there in various of his old characters, and at once emphasized the change that has taken place in theatrical taste, as well as settled his own position in the field of acting under modern standards.

Time was, as has been said, however, when Bandmann was something of a figure in the profession. Born in Germany, he acted in the German language in various European cities, and, coming to this country, he appeared in the first of the local German stock companies in 1860. Later he appeared in English, which he spoke with unusual correctness and fluency for a German, and later still he went to London, where he won some note.

On his return to this country, backed by Ion Perdicardis, who it will be rememb was some time ago an object of universal in-terest because he had been captured by Raisuli, the Moroccan bandit, Bandmann organized a company with which he toured this country for successive seasons. Bandmann's experiincluded other foreign tours and he acted in various countries, always with some measure of success. But in later years he had absolutely fallen from public thought, except with reference to his appearance in circumstances quite different from those of the prouder period of his career.

There is no accounting for "proper names, and the nomenclature of man is filled with

The same may be said as to theatres, some of which are belied by their names, while as to others their names are quite appropriate

Everybody acquainted w... theatrical mat-ters knows the freedom with which the words opera house" are applied to structures that bear no more relation to opera than the ru-minations of a deep-water fish—if deep-water fish ruminate-do to astronomy.

There are little "circuits" of so-called theatres and "opera houses," especially in the West, that managers and players who travel on prominent lines of railroad never dream A correspondent, for instance, writing from a remote Iowa town, gives this list of theatres and the towns of their location in a section of Minnesota seldom or never visited by a Mansfield or a Bernhardt: "Oleo Opera House, Butterfield; Steel Opera House, Thief Run Falls; Venl Opera House, Clunie; In-digo Opera House, Blue Earth; Pucker Opera House, Persimmon Falls; Clay Opera House, Pipestone; Canary Opera House, Bird Island; Fina Opera House, Heron; Marco Opera House, Twin Valley." Most of these sound fletitious—yet they may be veritable.

During the past fortnight there has been going on before Judge Cowing and a jury, in Part 2 of the Court of General Sessions, the murder of Thomas Corcoran who occupied a room next to the one in which Corcoran was shot and his body cut up. The counsel for the prisoner, Bauer, charged with this horrible murder, is one Carl Fischer-Hansen, said to be a Dane. On the morning of Nov. 28, in summing up for the defense and trying to discredit the statements made by La Nole, this attorney, Pischer-Hansen, by La Nole, this attorney, Fischer-Hansen, made, it is said, a statement to this effect about the young acrobat: "He belongs to the class of professional actors and acrobats who have no sense of honor—who look upon the whole world as a stage, and want to be in the centre of it."

This Attorney Pischer-Hansen is somewhat loose in his classification and somewhat careless in calling an acrobut a "professional actor," but that is a minor lapse, and perhaps his knowledge of the English language is limited as to fine distinctions. But on what authority does this Attorney Fischer-Hansen say that either acrobuts or actors are the sort of persons he describes in the course of his duty in defending a man charged with a brutal murder? What does he know about members of any brunch of the profession that he so lumps them as persons who have no sense of honor? Has he full knowledge of the characters of members of the dramatic and amusement professions in the country from which he came—assuming that he is a native of Denmark—and is that knowledge supplemented by full information as to the profession of the theatre in this country?

Attorney Fischer-Hansen may not know it, but acrobats as a rule, as well as actors as a rule, are persons quite as honorable as those of any other class or profession; and there are few of them at this time who would care to be classed with some lawyers, both native and immigrant, who "practice ' in this city and country.

The lawyer in the Metcalfe case who argues for the banded managers charged with conspiracy that a theatre is "on all fours" with a lady's boudoir, so far as the exclusion of any person a manager may not want in his place of amusement is concerned, would probably make more money if he were to set up as a humorist than he will in pursuit of the law. A theatre licensed by the city authorities and closely inspected at all times by the de-partments of health, fire and building, is as much like a lady's boudoir as a private brougham is like a railway train.

CHINESE PLAY FOR JEWS' BENEFIT.

The Bowery was in an uproar on Sunday evening, especially in front of Miner's Theatre, where an immense throng fought to get in to see the play King David presented by genuine Chinese actors and actresses. The event had been heraided by posters printed in English and Hebrew, and aithough the prices for the seats ranged from $1 to $5 that fact did not dampen the ardor of those who were clamoring for admittance. The piny was given for the benefit of the destitute Jews in Russia, and the loyal Russian Jews of the East Side were so anxious to contribute that a big squad of policemen had to be sent to check their enthusiasm. Of course there were very few peo-

HAMMERSTEIN UNDERTAKES OPERA.

BARMERSTEIN UNDERTAKES OPERA.

Oscar Hammerstein returned from his trip abroad on Sunday, Dec. 3, and immediately announced what had been the real object of his supposed vacarion. Conried and Savage are apparently to have a formidable rival in the field of grand opera, and the New York public will probably reap a decided benefit therefrom. Mr. Hammerstein's plan for establishing grand opera at regular theatre prices is amply explained in the Interviews given to representatives of the press. He is reported to have made the following explicit statements, and professes a thorough belief in the present success of a scheme which has failed on previous occasions:

"What I am to do is to give New York a house of worthy exterior and interior with a stage of the largest proportions. The building I am now putting up on West Thirty-fourth Street will sent 4,000 people, and will also have the large number of private boxes indispensable to a house devoted to grand opera.

"Grand opera in New York must be grand in everything, spectacular as well as musical. The principals must be of the best, the chorus carefully trained, the conductor a man of reputation. The costumes must be fresh as well as traditionally correct, and the stage management thoroughly up to date. Nothing less will be accepted in New York, whether the price is $5 or $1 for an orchestra sent.

"After what I have learned on my Europeantour I think I can meet these conditions, provided the boxes in my new house are subscribed for for the season. I do not expect any difficulty in that direction.

"I visited the opera at Berlin. Dresden, Munich, Vienna, Naples, Paris, Milin and London.

MRS. FISKE HONORED BY HARVARD.

On Tuesday, Dec. 12, Mrs. Fiske, who is now playing Leah Kleschna (in which character she is pictured above) at the Tremont Theatre, Bostum, upon invitation of the Harvard Ethical Science, will deliver an address relating to the ethics of the drama, in Saunders' Theatre, Har-

There were thirty-five Chinesemen and fifteen Chinese women in the cast, and according to Lee Lick You, thu Gow, Joe Chue and other members of the Chinese Empire Reform Association, under whose ampices the benefit took pince, the performance was one of the best town pixen in New York. The affair was managed by Abraham Myers.

PROFESSIONAL DOINGS.

Harriet Barton, whose picture appears above, has been compelled to close her stock engagement in South Chicago owing to ill health, and after a short rest expects to go out with some company playing week stands. The strain of playing every night and three matinees, with a new bill each week, proved too much for Miss Barton's strength. During her stay in South Chicago Miss Barton met with constant praise, and when her departure was announced the women patrons of the theatre entered a protest against her leaving.

Georgia Bryton, who played Katie Barry's parts in A Chinese Honeymoon and Fantana, is now appearing at private parties and musicales, presenting a refined monologue, with character songs. Miss Bryton has appeared at several affairs given by members of the "400" during the past few weeks and is delighted with the work. It is more than likely, however, that she will create an important part in a production to be put on early in the new year.

Ogden D. Wright, who was reported last week to be suffering from the effects of knock-out drops at the McKinley Hospital, Trenton, N. J., has recovered and is now at his home in Chicago. The physicians decided that his illness was due to a collapse from overwork.

E. A. Parks has secured M. Dallett's lease of the Parks Theatre, at Louisiana, Mo., and will becenfter manage the house personally. All bookings made by Mr. Dallett will be recognised.

E. Charles Fitzgerald, for the past three sea-sons connected with the Rodney Stock company, closed at Cadillac, Mich., on Nov. 17, and joined J. C. Lewis' Si Plunkard company.

On Dec. 1 the committee in charge of the Mc Conneil benefit sent the widow $2,540, which sum represented the receipts from the performance and personal subscriptions from friends through out the country.

Next week there is to be a matinee of The Press Agent for the special benefit of the promot-ers of theatrical publicity. The idea is to furnish these gentiemen with an opportunity to see them-selves as Peter F. Dailey sees them.

On Jan. 1 Dorothy Sherrod will appear in her former role of Bossy in a revival of Hoyt's A Texas Steer. Next August she will be seen in New York as Constance Livingstone in C. T. Brady's comedy, A Corner in Coffee.

Alexandria Viarda, a Polish tragedienne, will soon present in English Gabriela, La Signora di Chaliant, and Don Carlos. Her tour will be-gin Dec. 8 at the Hyperion Theatre, New Haven.

Several changes are advertised to take place this week in the Forepaugh company at Robinson's. Harry Burckhardt has resigned as leading man and Harry Fenwick, who has been playing seconds, has been promoted to the vacancy. He appeared yesterday for the first time in the title-role of Prince Karl. Additions to the company have been made in the persons of Harry Forrest, late of the Bush Temple, Chicago, and Seth Haisey, who has been with a New Orleans company.

Miss Bob White, for the first time here at popular prices, has been drawing well at the Walnut.

Her return to the Tremont stage after two years of absence has been awaited with the greatest interest, for much had come here from New York concerning her most important creation, but it was very evident that not he'f enough was said cone ming it by the Bostonians who witnessed the play in New York. It was an interpretation that had to be seen to be appreciated, and it was the verdict of all this evening that she had far surpassed all her previous achievements by her powerful work in the title-role of this fracticating play. Her magnetic personality and her emoptional powers are exactly suited by this work, and the telling scenes created the greatest of enthusiasm on the part of the large audience, and she was recalled deservedly again and again. The leading members of the supporting company shared in the honors, and it was universally admitted that this was the best halanced company seen upon the stage of the Tremont in a long time. The opening was so anapticious that it is very evident that the engagement will prove a record breaker.

The Bowdoin Square came to the fore to-night with its stock company and gave the first performance on any stage of A Legacy of Sin, a meiodrama, which attracted an unusual amount of attention from the fact that it was written by E. H. Clement, the editor-in-chief of the Boston Svessing Transcript. There was a large audience filling the theatre, and the success which the new play achieved was unquestioned. It was spiendidly acted throughout, the cast being as follows:

Charlotte Hunt innette Marshall Sadie Radeliffe Fissence Hale earl De Sesiour Enma Krause Lillian Henrie Edwin Denison Charles Millior Thaddeun Gray Henry Alexander

meeting of the Giris' Friends' Society, presided of over by Mrs. Lucy Lace. At the opening of the meeting Virgidia has entertained the working giris by appearing on the platform as a concert soprano. The aris surg by the Italian woman in the first act is heard for the second time. The club meeting is invaded by a delegation of strikers, who seek the co-operation of the woman work-people in their strike. Mrs. Low proposes that the girls shall sisist them if they will stand for equal pay for women and for mea, and Virginia Luce, addressing them, promises to intercede for their the very same night with her father. In fact, she invitus them to meet her at her father's house at ten o'clock, and so act second closes. The sequel of the broken up dinner party in act third is Virginia's cutrance to her father's library to prepare him for the entrance of the delegation from the strikers, only to be assalled first by old Madame Luce, who, in her insane fury of champagne and jealousy combined. roundly charges her with being not her son'v daughter, but a wanton he has picked up som-where in Burope and now his mistress. The villain of the play, D'Oyley Gray, overhearing enough of this scandalous charge to-piece out guspiclous in his own mind, next selses her and tries to persuade her to elope with him. He tells her hastily that she, virginia, will get no more money from Luce, because he (Gray) has see he is substance securely packed away in England, whither he is going on the steamer sulling on the morrow.

The concluding acts bring about the reconciliation between the magnate and his hitherto unact, knowledged son and presumably heir. They detail prompt measures taken by the young Congressman-lawyer to capture D'Oyley Gray and seve the property through a receivership, the convalencemen of Tyler Luce from the effects of a surplice of this convalencemen the sudden. Homeo or Benedick—but they are to have forgotten all about the melancholy lone this year in their unqualified praise for Mr. Schern's work. The supporting cast was the some as in New York and the identical scenic projection was used.

Two important changes in cast were made in Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots at the Park this evening as the result of the untimely closing of Wolfride. Guy Standing and Jassie Busby were transferred back to this comedy, adding much to its effectiveness. Miss Busby again took up her original character of Nova, the maid, but Mr. Standing now takes up Walter Corbin, which has been played by Orme Caidava, who has been transferred to that of B'chard Alinaise, replacing conway Tearle, who goes to another play.

The Rogers Brothers in Ireland began a three weeks' engagement at the Colonial to-night with a large audience. There was a special interest in the presence in the cast of Corinne, who is a clever Boston girl, who has not played here in several seasons.

a large audience. There was a special interest in the presence in the cast of Corinne, who is a clever Boston girl, who has not played here in several seasons.

As Xe Sow keeps on at the Majestic to good business, but the fortnight upon which it has entered is its last one, as it goes from here to New York. Ethelie Barse made her first appearance as the heroine in the middle of last week and she was spiendidly received, adding much to the effectiveness of the play.

No production that has been made at the Empire by the stock company can begin to compare with that of if I Were King, which was given to night in the most elaborate fashion. Scenically it was the most ambitious thing attempted here, and in every respect the presentation compared well with that which had been given here at higher prices. In the leading character of Villon Mr. Hansel was at his best, and Mary Hail's Katherine de Vancelies was one of the best characters that she has played here. A conspicuous impersonation was the Lou's XI of Frank Losee, who gave the crafty old monarch a vivid life study that stood out with special effectiveness. It was no small tank to challenge comparison with Henry Irving, but Mr. Losee's work was as strong as that which the English tragsdan gave in his play dealing with the life of that monarch. A return to a Clede Fitch comedy was an interesting event for the players at the Castle Square, and although The Climbers had already been given at that house the present cast was almost entirely different, so that the various impersonations came out as distinct novelties. John Craig and Lillian Kemble took the chief honors of the unusually interesting presentation.

The Winard of Os keeps on to splendid business at the Boston, with Montgomery and Stone and all the other favorites in the cast. A number of new features have been added since the extravaganus was first given here, so that it is now more effective as a fun maker than ever. Allene Crater and Mona Desmond are among the best liked ladies in the cast, each making Charles T. Aldrich is the star of the week at the Grand Opera House this week, returning to the legitimate stage after vaudeville successes to play the title-role in Secret Service Sam. This is another of Theodore Kremer's thrillers, and the scene where the burgiars break open a safe and have the opening doors reveal the detective in waiting is one of his masterpieces of ingenuity.

Thankagiving Day was appropriately observed by the players in Beston, and although extra matinees were given the actors had a chance for their turkey dinners. E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe had dinner served at the Hollis behind the senses after the matinee, and B. F. Keith spread an elaborate feast for all his employes at his theatre. An auto took Nat C. Goodwin out to Milton so that he could have a dinner with his father and mother and be back for the evening. Mirs. Agnes Booth Schoeffel entertained Katherine Grey at Brookline, and Guy Standing was the guest of friends at the University Club. Sam Edwards and Neil O'Brien met friends from San Francisco at the Tournine, where they had a reminon dinner, and George J. Appleton entertained a party of friends at the Thorndike. The busiest house was the Majestic, where three distinct performances of As Te Sow had to be given in response to demands.

It was a distinct compliment to Mrs. Fiske to invite her to deliver an address in Sanders Theatre, Harvard University, in the course of her engagement at the Tremont. She is the first actress to be singled out for such an honor by the Ethical Society, and the address will be sure to attract an unusual amount of attention in college circles. Blue Jeans proved the banner production for patronage at the Empire, with Mary Haili's June as the conspicuous feature. She has been refuncted by E. E. Sothers to slew the Opene with Society, and the address will be sure to attract an unusual amount of attention in college circles. Blue Jeans proved the hanner production for patronage at the Empire, with Mary Hall's June as the conspicuous feature. She has been requested by E. H. Sothern to play the Queen with him in a scene from Hamlet at the Actors' Fund benefit, and that will be one of the big features of the bill.

A change in the place of Clayton Gilbert's presentation of Irish plays has been made, and the special performance will be at the Colonial instead of at the Hollis. On Jan. 25 is the afternoon, and the bill will include The Lost Saint. The Twisting of the Rope, The Saxon Shilling. and Riders to the Sea.

Bev. John Snyder, the clergyman-author of As Te Sow, delivered an address at a memorial meeting of negroes held in St. Paul's Church last week. In the course of his remarks he said that his manager had asked him to go South to collect material for a play of Southern life and that it was his ambition to write a dramm with a noble colored man as its hero.

They were to have had performances of The Child Stealer at the Bijon all last week in aid of charity, but the promoters of the entertainment neglected to sell tickets, and the engagement was declared off after a rather lively time. Ben Greet and his English players will open their Shakespearan season here to-morrow.

Florence Kahn, who has been at the Castle Square since the opening of the present season, has resigned from the organization. Her last appearance was in Secret Service.

A Crown of Thorns. Jay Hunt's new melodrama, will' have an elaborate production at the Bowdon Square 11. His daughter, Charlotte Hunt, will have the star part, and the stock company of the house will be in the production.

Spangles; or, the Wooden Horse, Produced-Mrs. Carter—A Busy Scason.

(Special to The Mirror.)

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4.

Spangles; or, the Wooden Horse, a new comedy by Charles Frederick Nirdlinger (on the style of the late Charles Holt plays), received its first production on any stage this evening at the Broad Street Theatre. The many friends of the popular author crowded the theatre, which was handsomely decorated for the occasion. The scene of the play is laid in a Western village. Mr. Auten, a millionaire, has become tired of the gayety of life in New York and of always seeing the same bored faces at theatrical first nights. He has endowed the town of Spangles with a free library, and, bethinking himself of the place, goes there with his two daughters for rest, quiet and to get away from the theatres. The time of his visit is ill chosen, for Spangles has contracted the theatrical fever and is is the throes of a home production of a mask entitled The Passionate Shepherd. In New York Auten's daughter Sylvia and been loved by an actor named Courtney Kane. This young man follows his sweetheart to Spangles and naturally gets into the production of the mask. From these incidents many amusing and funny situations are developed and the play is further enlivemed by musical numbers. The cast is as follows:

and The Model—Calve—Amateurs.

(Bpecial to The Mirror.)

St. Louis, Dec. 4.

With the approach of the holidays there is not this year a perceptible failing off in the theatre attendance. A bargain-huncing desire seems evident and patrons go where they think they will get the most for their money. Ethel Barrymore's engagement just closed at the Olympic was a case in point. Sunday did not piease particularly well, but the Barrymore vogue would not be denied, and the result was a very profitable week for the Brondway playhouse.

On Saturday last the foyers of all the houses were in possession of the ladies of the Hospital Saturday and Sun lay Assaciation, an annual enforced cash collection epist. Ce, with the very laudable object of aidiay substantially various elemosynary institutions of St. Louis. Every one contributing was given a tuttonhole badge as a sort of receipt for a generosity, and the emblem also rendered him immune against importunities by the fair ones stationed in the office buildings. The day's collections will total up nearly $20,000. Yesterday the churches made collections after stirring appea's by the pastors about that which "covereth a multitude of sina." The result, it is said, was worth while.

William H. Cranc, dean of American stage humorists and still the unfunny comedian of yore, is at the Olympic in his latest, An American Lord. Crane means well, has been materially successful almost teyond the dreams of avarice, but his lack of versatility is more and more apparent as the seasons come and go.

The Heir to the Hooras made a hot finish at the Century. In its midweek comment the Rebublic devoted five distinct and separate paragraphs to it, each of which filled the space that ought to have been alloted to another attraction. Robert Edeson opened at the Century last night in Strongheart. Here he doffs the familiar stage prig so often interpreted by him, harks back to hature and becomes the indian foothall sthete. He does not fetch up in a hospital, and to that extent the part and play l

Yet they get good, clean entertainment there which will helther set the river on fire nor endanger the more solid things in and about St. Louis.

"De cullud population" has Manager Russell's imperial this week in the shape of The Smart Set company. St. Louis has many negroes, and among them there is coming up a very thrifty contingent.

The Biddle Brothers, Bank of England robbers, have their Inning in fac-simile at the Hav-lins. The play, A Desperate Chance, recurs to many blood-and-thunder incidents which recent playbilis at Manager Garen's carefully avoided. In the company are Harry L. Waterhouse, Harold Yosburg, Gertrude Magili and several other capable players.

Pedley and Burch, managers of the Grand and People's opera houses at Evansville, Ind., are reported to be stricken with metropolitan yearnings and are about to open playhouses in Chicago, St. Louis, Atlanta, Richmond and Birmingham.

The young lady members of the Central High School College Club appeared in Sophocles' Antigone the other night and made a more than creditable showing. The cast was as follows: Antigone, Evelyn Henderson; Ismene. Alma Brady; Creen, Judith Levy; Messenger, Gertrude Kirksey; Haemen, Meta Gruner; Tiresna, Jessie Starke; Eurydice, Mildred Powell; Guide to the Prophet, Eva Millus, and the members of the chorus: Myrtle Alderman, leader; Misses Eva Millus, Gladys Blickhahn, Florence Pierson, Nell Herner, May Kummersderfer, Ethel Risque, Florence Gibney, Ida Meyer, Haasel Rader, Grace Dodd, Sara Thomas Ethel Maffray, Frances Taylor, Ruth Le Cron, Alice Becker, Anna Riesmayer, and Eunice Haddaway.

The product of the pr tin Daly's company, headed by Ada Hehan, was invited to appear before the students, and came by special train from Chicago. After witnessing Daniel Sully's performance of Our Pastor at South Bend a few weeks ago Frither Cavanaugh, president of Notre Dame, extended an invitation to Mr. Sully to appear before the students at a matinee performance Nov. 21. The invitation was gladly accepted. The company were to leave Lafayette, Ind., make a quick connection and arrive at South Bend just in time for a matinee performance. The train being late, however, the company missed their connection and were delayed at a small station seventy miles east of South Bend. After wiring the faculty, Mr. Sully received a message asking him to play in the evening if possible. A special train hurried the company on to South Bend and it was 10.30 P. M. before the scenery and paraphernalin arrived at the college theatre. When the curtain arose at 11 P. M. a most enthusiastic audience greeted Mr. Sully. The seven hundred students, together with their invited guests, applauded the performance to the echo. The curtain fell at 1.30 A. M. After the performance the company were entertained at a banquet in the college dining hall. Owing to the impression created by Mr. Sully and his company the faculty invited Mr. Sully to appear annually before the students.

FIRE AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Early on the morning of Nov. 29 a fire started in a pile of rubbish on the stage of the Grand Opera House. The serious damage was confined entirely to the acenery of The Prodigal Son, most of which was either burned or water soaked. The automatic aprinklers proved their value by keeping the fire under control until the arrival of the department. Fortunately the asbestos curtain was down and prevented the blaze from spreading to the auditorium. The building was erected as headquarters for the Eric Railroad in the carly sixties, was remodeled in 1867 and was opened as a theatre in the succeeding January. The only injury to the theatre itself was some damage to the rigging loft and gridforn.

E. S. WILLARD'S REPERTOIRE.

E. S. Willard will begin an engagement of three weeks at the New Amsterdam Theatre on Dec. 11. appearing in The Fool's Revenge every night of the first week and in The Professor's Love Story at the two matiness. For the second week Mr. Willard will present a double bill, Sydney Grundy's comedy. A Pair of Spectacles, and a dramatization of Rudyard Kipling's story of The Man Who Was, and will make his first appearance in both plays on Dec. 18. A Pair of Spectacles is not unknown in New York, but the one-act Kipling play will be a novelty, and as it was acted with marked success in London during Beerbohm Tree's presentation of it at His Magesty's Theatre there should be a genuine interest in its production. Mr. Willard thinks the play offers him very unusual opportunities in an artistically dramatic way and regards it as a capital foil to the humor of A Pair of Spectacles. The third week of the engagement will be given to popular selections from the repertoire—Tom Pinch, The Middleman. The Professor's Love Story and David Garrick, with The Man Who Was. This should prove to be one of Mr. Willand's most notable engagements in this city, as it will present this actor in a range of plays that must bring into exercise all the art and versatility for which he is celebrated.

THEATRE AT NEW BRUNSWICK SOLD.

Richard P. C. Shortridge has sold the only theatre in New Brunswick, N. J., to the New Brunswick, N. J., to the New Brunswick Opera House Company, a corporation of New Jersey. Louis Wiswell, of New York city, who is associated with Starr and Havlin, is the President and has charge of the booking for the house. George J. Litterest is the Secretary. Treasurer and local manager. William Proctor, of Baltimore, is to have charge of the box-office. John O'Brien is the singe manager and has charge of the bill posting. The company contemplates thoroughly renovating the theatre and making it an up-to-date playhouse in every respect.

Butler ... Darlington Martin Berendt Joe Jess Dodley A cross country comedy called The Winning Girl, having a definite plot and bright, lively music, was presented at the Shubert-Fark Theatre Monday night, Nov. 27, and was halled with approval by a large audience.

The story has to do with two society men. Julien Endicott and James Ellingham, who be come involved in a mild scandal in which a few chorus girls figure. The story finds its way into Trocs Tips, a society weekly, and bears the mysterious signature of J. E. Jack Ellingham, a son of James Ellingham, has been advised to do something or somebody for a living, and has furnished the paper with the story, which is published the following week under his initials. Mrs. Ellingham, thinking the paragraph refers to her son Jack, pays $1,000 to suppress any further publication, and complications ensue affording intensely amusing situations. There are threemen in the set who can logically be accused of the escapade. The endeavor to place the blame on a German musician, Jacob Erdman, is very amusing. Violet Dare, an actress, and Germaine Du Monde, a manicure, are suspected of having been the cause of the story, and more complications naturally ensue. However, everything is straightened out in the usual way and all is forgiven when Violet proves her ability to ride a horse in capital style when she rode triunchatty over the Lenox country grounds and maintal a winner.

Chiries J. Boss as Julien Endicott secured a laugh whenever he appeared. He interjected some of the clever scenes which made him popular as a buriesque artist. Frederick Bond scored substantially. His James Ellingham indicates that he is an able comedian. Mabel Fenton played the part of Mrs. James Ellingham in her customary way, full of life and activity. Caroline Heal was a fixed at the sum as good and the production as a well played by Fletcher Norton; he danced well and mang a number of catchy songs. Mark E. Slaw of Messalina.

On Doc. 1 Arris and Messalina, an old tragic lay of the pseudo-classic school, was produced to the Irving Place Theatre, with Gertrud Arold, Conried's latest importation from Berlin, in the leading role. The piece in itself proved to be selodramatic, stilted and emotionally antiquated, acts which could not be concessed by the most laborate stage settings exhibited at the German heatre for many years. The tragedy, written we decades ago, has become one of the standard seess in Germany, but this only goes to show at the popular Germanic tasts in drama is more sound and conservative than enlightened or regressive. It was a strangely cumbersome velicie to be selected as the medium for an American debut.

hicle to be selected as the medium for an American debut.

The plot is based on the perfidy of Messalina, imperial courtesan and wife of the Emperor Claudius, who held sway in Bome during part of the first century. The Empress lives up, or down, to her vile reputation by corrupting Marcus, the son of Arria and Cacina Patus, who is driven to suicide by the anrelenting shame of his parents. This gentic episode furnishes Messalina with a vindictive motive for wreaking her vengance on the father and mother with all the conceivable baseness of Roman degeneracy. As Patus is preparing to take his own life, having been condemned by the Emperor for being involved in an unsuccessful quagraphy against him, his wife plunges the danger into her own breast, and then, if the famium "Nou dolet, Paete!" There is some antifaction, however, in seeing Messalina herself slain by an emissary of the absent but suspicious Emperor.

sinin by an emissary of the absent but suspicious Emperor.

Frau Arnold won recognition as a superior actress at the Deutscher Theatre in Berlin, yet her debut was not quite such a success as had been anticipated. She showed careful training and an ability to cope even with a most rigidly inhuman character, yet she was not beautiful, and her performance was rather painstaking than inspired. Her enunciation was generally distinct, but her speaking voice had a quality that was certainly not sympathetic. Adolf Licho, another new arrival, suffered from a similar lack of opportunity as Narcissus. The other roles were all assumed by regular members of the company, who performed with their customary adequacy. Harry Walden as Marcus, the infatuated youth, gave Frau Arnold thoroughly capable support. Hermann Rudolph, Elizabeth Ariaans, and Otto Ott-bert were distinctly worthy of individual commendation.

ombination of Charles T. Aldrich's skill odore Kremer's ingenuity makes the int-ctive play a mighty popular entertain-ten though most of the canons of dra-t are sent to limbo. It is a mixture of melodrama of the murdered-uncle-accused-niece family, with a couple of vaudeville turns and some expensive magician's properties. It begins with a particularly cruel and cold blooded mur-der and winds up with an uncanny, green lighted ghost seance sufficiently creeps to make any vil-lain turn pale. Through the four acts Mr. Al-drich disappears and reappears in new disguises in a way to make many professional magicians envious.

Mr. Aldrich is very much at home in the part of Sam and uses his skill as a rapid change artist to much advantage. In the third act he repeats his vandeville tramp specialty with good effect. Addle St. Alva as Amanda Ferkins has a well-fitting comedy role and sings a couple of songs to much applause. Charles R. Crolius in the part of Patny Cryan has the other comedy role, which he plays with an excellent dialect. Edith Browning makes a pleasant Mary Elliott, who retains her charm in the face of innumerable hair-breadth escapes. Ethel Martin, statuesque and pretty, plays the villainess admirably. Harry Cowley as Philip Hyde, the villain, is given willanous enough lines, but is so bad that he makes the role one of the comedy features. Thomas A. Charles as Geoffrey Rockfeller and Witter J. Buxter as Mr. Shannon are antisfactory. Edward Foley as Hans Shultsmeyer, the dentist, puts a good deal of fun into his scene in the second act. Other members of the cast have very little to do and are uniformly in keeping with the general standard of the play.

Yorkville.—Woman Against Woman was the offering of the Yorkville Theatre Stock company last week. The Darling of the Gods, with Fercy Haswell in Blanche Bates' role, began a week's engagement last night, and for the next two weeks plays under the direction of David Belasco will occupy the house. Sweet Kitty Bellairs is the underline for next week, with the all-star revival of The Heart of Maryland to follow.

CRITERION.—William Coilier made his reappearance in America at the Criterion Theatre last week in On the Quiet. The performance moved spiritedly, and Mr. Coilier as Robert Ridgeway showed the benefit of added experience since he was last seen here in the role. Ida Conquest acted the part of Agnes Coit with sincerity and a good deal of charm. John Saville as Judge Ridgeway, Cranley Douglas as the Duke of Carbondale, George Nash as McGeachey, and Charles B. Poore as Dr. Walcott received a large share of the applique.

Thomashefsky, the Tiddish actor, will give a single performance of The Chosen Feople on the afternoon of Dec. 12, at a Broadway theatre to be announced later. The lower floor of the theatre will be reserved for such English-speaking actors as may wish to witnesse his performance, while seats in the balconies will be sold to others for the relief of the Jews in Odessa. Mr. Thomashefsky will lecture briefly on what he saw during a massacre he witnessed when a boy in Kishineff.

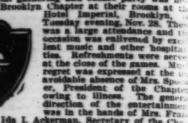

AMONG THE DRAMATISTS.

Howard P. Taylor is putting the finishing touches to a new, modern comedy in four acts, entitled Mixed Matrimony, an early production of which he has been promised. Mr. Taylor has eight plays upon the road this season.

Harry Leighton has secured the rights to dramatize "Butternut Jonea," a story of western Texas, published by D. Appleton and Company.

Laura Burt has secured the dramatic rights of "John of Strathbourne" from Appleton's.

ACTORS' CHURCH ALLIANCE NEWS.

Local and National Headquarters, Manhatter Theatre Building, Broadway, New York City.

A social gathering and euchre party was head by the Brooklyn Chapter at their rooms at the Hotel Imperial, Brooklyn, an Taesday evening, Nov. 28. There was a large attendance and the occasion was enlivened by excellent music and other hospital ties. Refreshments were served at the close of the games. Music regret was expressed at the unavoidable absence of Mrs. Spook. et., President of the Chapter, owing to illness. The general direction of the entertainment was in the hands of Mrs. Frank ter, efficiently assisting.

The closing of the theatres on Sunday in the interest of the actors, who desire their day of rest, has been recently the subject of much discussion in the Chapters located in the larger cities. The growing evil of Sunday theatre open ling from the standpoint both of public morals and the rights of the actor has been referred in the Publication Committee of the National Council to report at an early meeting some form of action by which the general body of the Alliance may record its protest against this offense, of which there is now such general complaint. The Philadelphia Chapter reports through its Secretary some very interesting and significant interviews recently held with members of the dramatic profession of the highest distinction, whose appeal for the restful Sunday is entitled to the greatest respect.

Owing to the absence of many members of the National Council from the city in Thankagiving week the December meeting of the Council has been postponed to Friday, Dec. 8, at four P.M.

The Providence Chapter will hold a handker-chief sale during the coming week. Any members of the Chapters wishing to send a donation can mail the same to Mrs. F. Vernon Wilson, Secretary of the Populary afternoom, Dec. 7. All members and their friends are cordially invited.

An actors' Thankagiving service was given by Edward Davis, M.A., Ph.D., on "The Ministry of the Stage."

MRS. FISKIPS GREAT SUCCESS.

MRS. FISKP'S GREAT SUCCESS.

Mrs. Fiske's appearance in St. Louis and Buffalo, with the Manhattan company, in Leah Kleschna during the past two weeks was notable among other reasons because for several seasons she has been unable to play in those cities, which now are open to her and the other Independents, and in all the cities in which the new and more liberal conditions prevail the complexion of amusements has been so changed by the competition that the press generally hail happily the new order of things. Beginning on Dec. 4 Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan company appear at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, for a fortnight. This city and theatre have steadily been among those open to Mrs. Fiske throughout her independent career, but she has not played in Boston in two years, owing to other circumstances, and that city now sees her with the famous Manhattan company for the first time in Leah Kleschna. At the conclusion of her present tour, which still has several weeks to run, Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan company will return to the Manhattan Theatre, New York, for their regular annual engagement, during which Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan company and possibly in several notable revivals.

die of this month. This will not be the first sale of Irving's possessions. Early in 1899 there came under the hammer a "portion of the dramatic library of a gentleman." the 418 lots fetching about £1.500, this including a grangerized copy of Hawkins' "Life of Edmund Kean" at £155 and various editions of Shakespeare. But the chief of the Shakespeare books did not occur in 1899, nor will it next month—the copy of the Second Folio, 1632, with marginal notes by Theobaid and Dr. Johnson. Osbora, the bookseller, bought it on Theobaid's death and presented it to Johnson, at whose sale in 1785 Samuel Ireland, the celebrated forger, gave £1 for it. The Folio cost Sir Henry £100.

Irving was big and generous enough to be an enthusiast about other big men and his collection of relics is some indication of his taste. There are, for instance, a stuffed black raven of Charles Dickens, valued sour years ago at £80, and an extensively extra ilimstrated copy of Forster's "Life of Dickens." One of the book rartities is a fine, unsheared copy of the 1855 edition of Othello, presented by Mr. Marshall, and another Shakespeare volume has the signature of Walt Whitman. Robert Browning was the donor of a silk purse which had been Edmund Kean's, and twenty years ago Toole gave his friend the big silver vase executed by Faul Storr in 1818 from a design of Flaxman's, initially presented to Kemble by a group of admirers.

Many of the objects had been Garrick's. For instance, the malacca cane which Irving used in The Lyons Mail, the gold ring given to him by Edwin Booth, and the sund box made from the wood of the famous mulberry tree at Stratford. Not least interesting are the copies of plays in which Irving had appeared, most of them with his signature and autograph notes as to the rendering of certain lines and passages.

In the good oid days of the Lyceum Irving requisitioned many artists to design for him. Then, too, he counted most of the prominent ones among his friends. The pictures and drawings to be sold on Dec. 16 include exampl

EARLY CAREER OF MRS, JORDAN.

For Dawson's benefit on June 1 the advertisement in the Preeman's Journal announces. The True Born Irishman, "Miss Bland." This sudden change of name is very perplexing and one is puzzled to know whether the actress referred to was the elder or younger Miss Francis. On the 6th, "Miss D. Bland" is announced to play Lucia, in Cato, and to render the unverty the deeper, on the 12th, "Miss Francis is cast for Lady Anne, in Richard III. Subsequent events show that not long afterward the Francis sisters seceded from Crow Street and enlisted under the banner of Daly. For one at least the change was frau at with both good and evil—that is to say, "Martistically, evil morally. Mra Daly legant and accomplished actress, who in the days when she was Miss Barsanti had been the original Lydia Languish. Under her tuition, Dolly Francis made rapid and surprising progress. But the benefit derived from association with the wife was counterbalanced by the contaminating influence of the satyrhusband. Daly was one of those libertines in whose company no woman is ande. Borden burkes the fact, but this scoundrel was responsible for Dolly Francis's downfall, and indirectly for her adoption of the name by which she was to endure in the annais of the stage.

The present is a fitting juncture to consider the extraordinary account of Mrs. Jordan's novitiate given by Fryse Lockhart Gordon in the first volume of his "Personal Memoirs," published in London in 1830. Its manifold bunders and misstatements must be dealt with in detail, particularly as Borden accepts the whole unreservedly, and lends the cachet of his name to an overwhelming mass of error. How and the proper stated as 16 in the year 1778, when an old military friend, then in the recruiting service at Cork, saw her there, in the company of which Daly was then manager, who had brought her out the year before." How absurd all this is will become apparent when I say that Daly made his first appearance in Dublin, at Crow Street on May 15, 1779, in the character of Lord Townly, remain learned of her in her friend Michael Kelly's "Reminescences."

We have positive proof that P. L. Gordon confused the two young actresses not only in his bestowing upon Mrs. Jordan a name under which she never acted, but in his allusion to her father's employment as a scene shifter under Heaphy. On the whole, Herbert is a much more satisfactory witness than Gordon, and I accept unreservedly Herbert's statement that Dolly's father was dead at the time the four members of the Francis family came to Dublin. The confusion arose in Gordon's mind from the fact that Mr. Phillips's father was present in Cork during the engagement of 1782. John Bernard, afterward favorably known on the American stage, was a member of Daly's fine company at this precise junction. Dealing in his Retrospection of the Stage, with his sojourn in Cork, he not only gives us some interesting details regarding Miss Phillips, whom he speaks of as about 16, very beautiful and very clever, but relates an episode showing that Mrs. Jordan had been in the Southern city in the year previous. He points out that toward the close of the Cork season (or in other words, as the advertisements show, on August 20, 1782), the company went temporarily to Limerick for the assizes. "Miss Phillips and her father." we are told, "decided on a chaise or buggy" for the journey. So much for a blunder made by Gordon, perpetuated by Borden and tacitly accepted by the Dictionary of National Biography!

Daly reopened Smock Alley Theatre, Dublin, on Nov. 1, 1781, with The Suspicious Husband. Jacintha by Miss D. Francis, Maid, Miss Francis. Subsequent characters played by Dolly were Charlotte Weldon, in Oroonoko, and Nerissa in The Merchant of Venice. The most notable accession to Daly's ranks this season was the young tragedian John Philips (Kemble, then in the first blush of his memorable and stately career. Captain Jephson, a well-known Dublin gentleman, distinguished as author of several tragedies and a brilliant amateur actor, had just had his Count of Narbonne successful

Herbert, "came to the theatre" to find which of the actresses was capable of playing Adelaide, and after a trial of reading from the candidates, Mins D. Francis was selected as the best. The public were surprised at the choice of a hoyden to perform a part in tragedy of such feeling and interest; but they were cured of their surprise by astonishment, when they beheld her in the part, performed it to such admiration that the author declared if she had made her debut in that part there was every probability of her making as good an impression as she had in comedy. The exact date of Daly's production of The Count of Narbonne is unknown, but it was played for the second time on December 18, 1781. On New Year's Eve Dolly Francis was seen as Cecilia to the Signor Arionelli of Mrs. Daly, in O'Keeft's farce of The Son-in-Law. Considering that she had taken a vow against the donning of masculine attire, one wonders why Mrs. Daly adventured were relief to the second the strength of the second transcriptor of the second transcriptor attire, one wonders why Mrs. Daly adventured were relief to the second transcriptor. Herbert, "came to the theatre" to find which Signor Arionelli of Mrs. Daly, in O'Keefe's farce of The Son-in-Law. Considering that she had taken a vow against the donning of masculine attire, one wonders why Mrs. Daly adventured upon Arionelli, a role which had been originally sustained by Bennister, and called for the fashionable dressing of the hour. Mrs. Daly might have avoided the difficulty by wearing a greatcoat, but instead of that she stupidly salved her conscience by arraying herself in the nondescript costumes of Arbaces, in the opera of Artaxerxes. Some idea of the quaintness of her appearance may be gleaned from her portrait as Arionelli, one of the treasures of the Burney collection of theatrical prints (Vol. I. p. 78), in the British Museum.

To return to Mrs. Jordan. Although the playing of tragic characters by a young actress of riotous animal spirits, soon to be hailed undisputed Queen of Comedy, seems to us now a sad waste of time and energy, the experience really proved of infinite service. Laughter and tears are so closely allied that your true comedian must be able on occasion to sound an unerring note of pathos. That is why the old mode of graduation was much better for the artist than the new. When John Philip Kemble took his benefit on Feb. 28, 1782, Dolly Francis played Charlotte to his Beverly, in The Gamester. Similarly when Tamerlane was played on April 16, the two were seen as Louisa, in Mrs. Sheridan's comedy, The Discovery, and four nights later as Maria in The School for Scandal. Later in the month there was an enjoyable performance of Katherine and Petruchio, with Kemble as the shrew-tamer, and the effervescent Dolly as the imperious beauty who had to be subjugated.

With her performance at Smock Alley on May 16, 1782, of Maria, in Burgoyne's musical comedy of The Maid of the Oaks, all trace of Miss Francis in Dublin ends. Possibly she may have acted a few nights longer, but for all practical purposes the date marks the close of her novitiate. Unfortunately, poor Dolly had been induced to pluck the rosy-checked but bitter

DINNER OF THE DRAMATISTS' CLUB.

The American Dramatists' Club heid its annual dinner at Delmonico's on Sunday evening, Dec. 3. with Bromson Howard in the chair and David Warfield as the guest of honor. The President naturally acted as toastmaster and introduced the speakers. Mr. Warfield wes absolutely overwhelmed with compliments, and Charles Kleir also came in for a liberal share of oralse. At the opening of the speech-making Mr. Howard gave a toast to the American drama, which was drunk standing, after which he presented Warfield with a few words acknowledging the dramatist's indebtedness to the actor.

"The actor," said Mr. Warfield, "must confess to-day his gratitude to the dramatist, not because the dramatist a convenient scapegoat. And, by the same token, dramatists should have a kindly feeling toward actors.

"Picture to yourselves the man who drew the part of Poionius in Hamlet. You may feel sure he was lying in wait for Shakespeare, and said to him: "I won't play it!" Said Shakespeare, "What's the matter with it? It's the best comedy part I ever wrote? "I don't care," said the actor, "I think it is puak,"—or blank verset to that effect. Then Shakespeare no doubt humored him and wrote in that speech of advice to Laeries."

J. I. C. Clarke referred to the rapid development of the truly American drama, citing various examples from plays presented within the past year. Charles Klein had asked to be spared ment of the truly American drama, citing various examples from plays presented within the past year. Charles Klein had asked to be spared the ordeal of speaking. "Will Mr. Klein get up, then." said the chairman, "and let us look at him?" Mr. Klein did as he was bid, and then sank modestly back into his chair. Belasco's brief remarks served merely to call attention to Henry C. De Mille, with whom the veteran manager announced that he had made a contract. The most amusing incident of the evening was the speech by George Ade, who was the guest of honor a vear ago. In introducing him Mr. Howard said that now, since he had finally made a failure, they could all extend to him the hand of friendship. Mr. Ade seemed not the least upset by his recent theatrical mishaps and mentioned them with much philosophic humor. "There are compensations, too," he remarked: "fewer letters from managers to answer—and the country has a new charm."

A deal is pending in Comman between a promipent real estate firm and representatives of the Independents for the purchase of a theatre site in that city. It has been rumored that the Company, was also being considered. That an Independent house will soon be started in Omaha sooms an assured rach.

McKeesport, Pa., is also to have a new theatre, to be controlled by the Shaherts. Dr. A. J. White, lessee of the McKeesport Opera House, has closed a deal for inspects at Sinchir and Ringgold streets, and will creet thereon at once a theatre to cost about $250.000. The house will be modeled somewhat after the Nixon in Pittaburgh.

The Independent interests have been negotiating for the Empire, formerly the Music Hail, in Boston, it is said, and within a few weeks will receive a ten-year lease of the house from Rollin H. Allen, owner of the property.

The Indianapolis News spenks with regret on the fact that the plays of the Independents cannot be seen in that city. In an editorial on the subject it says: "Possibly another theatre here would yield a handsome profit. With the rapid growth of the town, and with the large population the interurbans make it possible to draw on, there ought to be no question of liberal patronage for good performances. Surely one high class theatre is not enough for such a city as this. Our people should not be shut up to such plays as the Syndicate sees fit to send us, excellent 2s many of these are. We suggest, therefore, that some of our enterprising capitalists confer with the Independents. The only weapon to use against monopoly is freedom."

The Buffalo, N. Y., Times prints on its dra-matic page: "Manager Laughlin, of the Lyceum Theatre, has received many letters commending him for the excellence of the productions which the anti-trust companies are putting on at the Lyceum. The patronage at his Washington Street playhouse is steadily increasing."

LAST WHEK'S MILLS.

Recent Burnor Senare—One of the ligner and the state of the state of the state in the state of the sta motion pictures made up the remainder of the programme.

Colonial.—A very important event occurred here last week, when R. A. Roberts, the English character actor, made his American debut. Mr. Roberts is wonderfully popular in London and other parts of England, and his appearance here was awaited with more than passing interest. That Mr. Roberts is very clever goes without saying, and that he pleased his American audiences is a fact that is pleasant to record. Mr. Roberts is an actor of great versatility and considerable magnetism, and in Dick Turpin, the one-man play he used for his debut, these qualities had full chance to show. Dick Turpin, according to the programme, was written and invented by Mr. Roberts himself. It was founded on an incident in the career of the famous highwayman. The action of the play takes place the night preceding Isick Turpin's famous ride from London to York, in October, 1738. The scene is laid in an upstairs room in an old innealled the Spanlards, on Hampstedd Heath, and is an accurate reproduction of a room in the lin, which is still standing, after six hundred years. With only two exceptions all of the furniture, copper, lanterna, platols and small properties are genuine and not makeshifts for stage use. The result of Mr. Roberts' care is a picture that cannot fall to impress even the most casual observer. There are five characters in the play, including Turpin, Soft Sally, the innkeeper; Jerry Blinks, a Yorkshire farmer, and Lady Mand Reanader. All of the parts are played by Mr. Roberts, who makes some lightning changes that are even better than those done by Fregoll. His work as the vilinimous old woman who has no scruples about poisoning people and as the Jovial farmer with his thick dialect was superb. He differentiated the characters in an admirable manner, and it was a delight to watch his every movement. He made a dashing appearance as Turpin, and when he made his final exit there was a round of applicate that had not time to subside before he scopped before the curtain in everyday clothes as the urbane Mr. Roberts who had appeared before the play began to preface his performance with a few words of introduction. It was a remarkable trick, and Mr. Roberts was called out again and again to bow his acknowledgments. The little play is cleverly put together and refects great credit upon the author-actor, who is a very welcome visitor to our abores. Auguste van Biene, the actor-musician, who was seen here several years ago in a play called. The Broken Melody, made his reappearance, playing with his accustomed cleverness two selections on a 'cello which was announced in the programme as being insured for $5,000. Another important number was offered by Le Domino Bouge, the mysterious young woman who danced at the New York Boof-Garden last Summer, and who has since then, according to report, captivated the Parislans. The act is elaborate and pleasing, and the performer dances very cleverly. She has added a dance called "Le Maxine," which she originated abroad. The opening act was the Eight Shetiands, headed by Rose Danie and Edith Warmer, which was abown here for the first time. It is a bright singing and dancing turn and was staged by Gertrude Hoffman. A. O. Duncan, with his ventriloquial topicalisms; Remo and Richards, in their funny acrobatic comedy act; James F. Kelly and Dorothy Kent, in a sketch called The Little Black Man, who held a reception in the lobby after the performance, and the pictures completed the bill, one of the strongs including "Henry Brown" and "Alin't it Hard to be Se Beautiful?" were warmly encored. Ned Waybura's Minstred Misses, an act that created a furore when it lests, Carter and institute, as assumed the pictures also scored.

Hammistrein's Victoria.—James T. Powers and company in Dreaming and Josephine Cohan and company in Friday, the Thirteenth, shared the honors last week and both acts scored big hits. The Walkosky Tronpe of singers, musicians and dancers were seen here for the first time and made a favorable impression. Clarice Vance, the Southern singer, had some new songs in her repertoire, and her original method of singing them brought her encores in plenty. Klein, Ott Brothers and Nicholson, who returned a few days ago from Europe, were given a hearty welcome and played to the entire satisfaction of the audience. Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Barry, the clever comedy entertainers, were well received, and the efforts of the Five Juggling Mowatta, To-To, and Watson and Morrissey brought appliause.

Pagron's.—Balley and Austin in their funny

To, and Watson and Morrissey brought applause.

Paston's.—Bailey and Austin in their funny skit, Two American Beauties, topped the bill, and their antics kept large houses in roars. The Bossires, who are very ciever wire artists, and Youngs and Brooks in their bright and pleasing musical act won their share of approval. Mr. and Mrs. George Lockwood in Her Anniversary Present have a sketch that has many good lines. The Three Constantine Sisters put much ginger into their dancing. Jackson and Hoon proved themselves experts in the line of illustrated songs and had some good ones in their repertoire. Others who pleased were Kennedy and James, Stedman's dogs and monkeys, Martin and Bidgway, Burkhardt and Berry, Doil and Burden, Cole and Clemens, and Conion and Hastings.

Almansaa.—Another excellent programme at-called Behind the Wings with a transformation artist. She is a sourrett and makes evered changes of costume, and during these changes the stage is darkesed and the changes, as they are supposed to take place behind the wings, are thrown on the acress. A whole lot of coundly is worked in these pictures, and it kept the andience in good humor during the otherwise entirely too slow changes of the European transformation artists. At the Central Theatre, Dressias, the Baggesum are heavily announced. At the Erystal Palest, Expisig, Johnson and Dean hawe a good place on the programme. I arrived in Frague the Changes of the bill I had to achieve the Changes of the C has been set aside, and in the second round of the legal battle the managers have come out victorious.

The basis of the suit was a contract entered into between Hallen and Thompson and Dundy calling for his appearance at the Colonial Music Hall, which was then under their management, in a sketch with his wife, Mollie Fuiler. The managers canceled the engagement, asserting that they were not bound by it, as it included a clause calling for a performance on Sunday, and was therefore null and void. When the case was tried the managers contended that Mr. Hallen could not recover damages because he intended to violate the Sunday law by giving a performance on the Sabbath. This defence did not hold good at the original trial and Mr. Hallen won. In their decision the judges of the Appellate Division say: "The defence was mainly based upon the statutes, commonly called the Sunday laws. It seems to us that the defence was well taken and the contract was void as being in violation of these statutes."

The importance of the decision may be gathered from the fact that at between twenty and twenty-five theatres in this city Sunday concerts are given, employing at least two hundred acts, and that the aggregate attendance is in the neighborhood of thirty thousand people. It is possible that the Wite Rats may take steps to carry the case to the Court of Appeals in order that the rights of vaudeville performers in this important matter may be properly defined.

HOUDINI BREAKS A RECORD.

MINER'S EIGHTH AVENUE.—The Mascottes, with vandeville and burlesque, entertained large audiences. This week, Colonial Belles.

Harry Houdini, during his engagement at the Temple Theatre. Detroit, Thanksgiving week, broke the record for receipts, held for some time by Vesta Tilley, and caused no end of excitement, in the city. At the Friday matinee he was nalled in France several weeks ago, was set at liberty in the Bow Street Court, in London, last week. Mr. McCaddon was arrested at Southampton Sept. 30 on a warrant issued in France charging him with frandulent bankruptcy, and the case has been called no less than seven times in the past eight weeks. The magistrate decided there was not sufficient evidence to hold McCaddon under the English law, and therefore refused to grant the extradition applied for. The court room was crowded and there was much applause when the magistrate announced his decision.

ANOTHER MAJESTIC THEATRE OPENED.

ANOTHER MAJESTIK THEATRE OPENED.

The Majestle Theatre, in Fort Worth, Texas, the Intent link in the chain of high-class vande-ville houses controlled by the Interestate Amuse ment Company of St. Louis, of which H. F. M. Garvie is president, was opened on Monday evening, Nov. 27. The house was started on its career with a great beon. Fullowing the pian observed on other coessions of a similar nature, no seats were cold at the box-office for the opening the entire beaus being taken by subscription. The result was a brilliant assemblage and lines carriages that extended for blocks in every direction. The exercises began with an address by Judge W. R. Booth, president of the Factors Club, which was largely instrumental in securing the theatre for Fort Worth. Judge Boot! and a stirring speech and was followed by Captain B. B. Paddock, secretary of the Board of Trade, and then Mr. McGarvie addressed the audience on behalf of his company, explaining the policy to be followed in giving Fort Worths good vandeville at fair prices. His remarks were applicable to be choose by his appearance, as he is a typical Texan, in alse at least, although he does not affect the long hair and the flowing mustache. The bill for the opening week included Gus Bruno Thomas J. Keogh and company, the Mysterious Crucibis, Josephine Jacoby, Gardner and Stoddard, the Prosper Troupe, Orgerita Arnoid, Rice's dogs, ponies and monkeya, and illustrated songs and moving pictures. Very handsome souvenir programmes were distributed and the occasion was a gain one from every point of view. The Interestate Amusement Company has now in operation theatres in Dallas, Waco, Houston, San Antonio, Hot Springs and Fort Worth, and early in January the new Majestic houses in Little rock, Ark.; Shreveport, La., and Birmingham.

PROCTOR'S BIG DINNER.

PROCTOR'S BIG DINNER.

F. F. Proctor does not believe in doing things by halves, and when he made up his mind to give a Thanksgiving dinner to his staff and the actors, actresses and vandeville performers appearing at his four New York theatres on Thursday afternoon last he was determined that the occasion would be one that would linger long in the memories of those who were present. The affair took place on the stage of the Fifty-eighth Street Theatre between the matinee and night performances, and eighty-seven people sat down to a bountsous feast. J. Austin Fynes, general manager for Mr. Proctor, presided, and at the other end of the table sat George E. Wailen, general treasurer of the Proctor enterprises. Mr. Proctor and his son, F. F. Proctor, Jr., sat respectively on the right and left of Mr. Fynes, others present were Ethan M. Robinson, manager of the Fifty-eighth Street Theatre; J. T. Fynes, manager of the 125th Street Theatre; George Edward Graham, manager of the Twenty-third Street Theatre; Mark A. Luescher, manager of the Fifth Avenue Theatre; John Ayres, Harry Brunelle, Phillip Mindil, Mr. Proctor's press agent; Clarence Wallen, Charles Hoffmeister, Amelia Bingham, Isabelle Evesson, Frances Starr, Beatrice Morgan, Jessie Bonstelle, William J. Kelley, Paul McAllister, Harold Hartsell, Charles Abbe, Geraid Griffin, Robert Cummings, Edmund Liyons, H. Dudley Hawley, Agnes Scott, Mathilde Deshon, Arthur Dunn, Katle Barry, Mary Norman, Charles F. Semon, Louise Beaudet, Fanny Rice, Nella Bergen, Lawrence Marston, and Barry O'Nelli.

LOTTIE GILSON ILL.

LOTTIE GILSON III.

Lottle Gilson is very ill at the North Pacific Sanitarium, in Portland, Ore., and has sent an appeal to her friends in this city for aid, as she is without funds. The aliment she is afflicted with is an inflammation of the nerves, which has paralyzed her lower limbs and has left her in a helpless condition. Miss Gilson is known as "the Little Magnet." and has enjoyed popularity as a serio-comic singer. She has probably been instrumental in making more new songs successful than any other vocalist who has ever appeared in vandeville in this country. "My Mother Was a Lady." "She Was Bred in Old Kentucky," "You're Not the Only Pebbie on the Beach," "The Moth and the Flame," and "Willie" are songs that she caused to be sung and whistled all over the country. She had a way of coaxing the boys in the gallery to join in the choruses with her that was simply irresistible, and many a song that aftained wide popularity and helped to make money for publishers and composers might never have been heard of but for her hard work in convincing the public that it had merit. She is very anxious to get back to New York for treatment and to be near her relatives and friends.

TO BENEFIT ACTORS' HOME.

Stveral well-known vaudeville performers are working on a scheme that should add a large sum to the funds of the Actors' Home. It consists of a transcontinental tour to be made by the greatest company of vaudeville stars ever put together in this country. There will be about fitteen big acts in the bill, and it is acte to say that the performance will attract wide attention. The organization will dash across the country, giving single performances in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Chicago, St. Louis, Derver, Omaha Sait Lake City, Los Angeles and San Francisco. When the company returns to New York it will appear for one week at a local theatre. The best seats will be sold at $5, and the players will receive only their actual expenses for the trin. seats will be soid at $5, and the pinvers will receive only their actual expenses for the trip, which will be made on a special train. The members of the vandeville branch of the profession have taken this means of doing their share for the Actors' Home, the doors of which are open to vandeville performers as well as to incapacitated players of the legitimate stage. If the plan is successful it is likely that an extremely substantial sum will be placed in the treasury of the Home.

GERTRUDE HAYNES MARRIED.

Cards were received in this city on Wednesday morning last announcing the marriage of Gertrude Haynes and Edward N. Flint. The event took place on Tuesday, Nov. 28, at Philadelphia, where Miss Haynes has made her home for the past year. Mr. and Mrs. Flint will be at home after Jan. 1 at 5433 Indiana Avenue. Chicago. Miss Haynes will be best remembered as the organist and director of the Choir Celestial in The Fatal Wedding, with which she toured for several seasons. Prior to joining that company she appeared in vandeville with great success in a bright musical specialty. Miss Haynes has hundreds of friends in the profession who will be glad to extend their warm congratulations on her marriage.

SMIRL AND KESSNER STILL TOGETHER.

All reports to the contrary notwithstanding. Harry Smiri and Rose Kessner have not separated and will continue to appear together and fill all engagements in their sketch. The Bell Boy and the Waiting Maid. It had been reported that they intended to dissolve partnership, but the rumor, like many others, is unfounded. Mr. Smiri is known as one of the best acrobatic comedians in vandeville, and Miss Kessner has a reputation as a dancer and comedienne that has won her wide popularity. They were with the Orpheum Show hat season as one of the big features and have always been appreciated in the best vaudeville houses.

CASINO SUNDAY CONCERT.

A series of Sunday concerts was started on Sunday evening last at the Casino under the direction of D. W. Truss. There was a large attendance, and the andience seemed delighted with the programme, which included Edna Aug. Will Rogers, Ojee, Press Eldridge, the Grand Opera Trio, Constantine Sisters, Seymour and Hill, Murphy and Francis, and Ireland's Own Band, with Lillian Powell.

F. F. PROCTOR AND J. A. FYNES PART.

F. P. PROCTOR AND J. A. FYNES PART.

J. Austin Fynes, for the past seven years general manager of the Proctor enterprises, has tendered his resignation and, it is said, will soon branch out in a big theatrical enterprise of his own. The business relations between Mr. Proctor and Mr. Fynes were closed most amicably and with good winhes on both sides. Mr. Fynes has been ambitious for some time to go into business on his own account, but his contract with Mr. Proctor prevented his acceptance of offers that have been made him that were very tempting. He will now be free to devote himself to the completion of an important project that he has been figuring on for asveral months. Mr. Fynes is a newspaper man and was managing editor of the Clipper for a long time prior to joining the forces of R. F. Keith as manager of the Union Square Theatre, which under his direction became a very profitable house. To his knowledge and foresight is due in great measure the high plane on which vandeville is run at the present time, as he was the first to see the advantage to be gained by the engaging of well-known dramatic stars to appear in vandeville in con-act plays. He is a master of detail and has a faculty for doing much more work than the average manager, without any of the fourish that usually goes with the running of a big organization. He has system down to a fine point, and usually disdains the services of a stenographer, preferring his ready pencil and the telephone and telegraph in carrying out the daily routine, which included the overseeing of everything connected with the running of seven the advantage to be gooded for when he announces his plans.

MINSTRELS WITHOUT MAKE-UP.

A novel performance of the Primrose Minstrels' not part was given in Springfield, Mass., at the hanksgiving matinee. The entire company apeared in street clothes and white face because he baggage car containing the accessry and make was lost somewhere between Norwick, and Springfield. The bouse was crowded the matinee, and at half-past two not a trunk piece of seenery had arrived. Not wishing to appoint the large audience. Mr. Primrose deded to give the first part without accesery, and fire explaining the situation the cartain went p on a plain interior set with kitchen chairs, he perfurmance was enjoyed by the company silved during the progress of the first part, and at remainder of the entertainment was given as small.

DOUBLE THANKSGIVING CELEBRATION.

McMahon's Minstral Maide and Watermelon Giris have used up about a ream of paper writing to their friends telling them what a fine time they had on Thanksgiving Day, when Mr. and Mrs. McMahon served dinner for twelve in their ruite at the Hotel Minot. Mrs. McMahon bought, overything herself and had the viands cooked in the hotel pastaurant. There were five kinds of vegetables, cider, nuts, cake and five kinds of pie, neluding minca, and the turkey weighed twenty-free pounds. Nov. 30 was also the birthday of Miss McLaughlin, a member of the little commy, and a birthday party was held after the night performance. The table was dressed with the mession house in Central Park studying the antice of the animals so that they might get an accurate likes of how to do "monkey shines."

Dan McCarthy, who has been making a big success with Charles E. Blaner's King of the Opinm Einz, was forced to cancel his engagement, having lost his voice. He will have an operation on his throat, and hopes to finish the season playing vaudeville dates doing his singing specialty.

Charles Lischer, who is now the manager of Zutha, presented a revised version of the act at the New York Theatre on Sunday evening last.

The Sunday concert that was to have taken place at Proctor's Theatre, Newark, N. J., on Sunday evening last, for the benefit of a local charity, was abandoned because a strong sentiment against Sunday performances in theatres had developed. The Columbia Theatre in Newark will also give up its Sunday concerts.

pany, and a birthday party was held after the night performance. The table was dressed with a pyramid of fruit in the centre and eighteen lighted candiles were placed on a birthday cake that had a ring baked in it. Refreshments were served and Mr. McMahon with his jokes added to the userriment. When the party broke up at 1.30 a.M. every one declared that they had had the time of their lives.

YAUDEVILLE JOTTINGS.

A number of men and women who are to appear in a monkey belief next week in A Society Circus at the Hippedrome, spent an afternson last week in the monker bouse in Central Park studying the antics of the annuals so that they might get an accurate idea of how to do "monker shines."

Harry Holman, formerly of Holman, Hayward and Hayward, has branched out as a monologist. He is reported to have scored a hit at the Doric Theatre, last week, and this week is at the Family Theatre, 128th Street, this city.

MUSIC NOTES.

Albert Spalding, the young American violinist, has made a very successful London debut at Queen's Music Hall, London. When only fourteen he played in concert at the Metropolitan Opera House, under the direction of Nahan Franko, and the same year at Bologna he received his diploma as professor of the violin, a title won at that age only once before, and then by Monart.

Clara Allison made her debut Nov. 27 at the Bijou Theatre, Decatur, Ill., in a piano recital. Miss Allison gave a little talk before each selection, and the Innovation was much appreciated. She is under the management of William E. Hines.

Francis Rogers, a buritone with an established reputation, gave a song recital in Mendelssohn Hall on Nov. 27. He sang four Schubert songs and songs by Loewe, Bronsa, Lisst, and Schumann. Mr. Rogers sings with clarity of tone and forceful style.

Raoul Pugne was heard in a second piano recital in Mendelssohn Hall on Nov. 28. Among other numbers he played Boethoven's sonata in D minor delightfully and poetically.

The New York Symphony Orchestra. Waiter Damrosch directing, gave a repetition of the concert given the Sunday previously in Carnegle Hall on Nov. 28. Kovelites were played in the form of Edward Elgar's composition for string and the "Legend of the Sang Brush."

Jan Kubelik, the Bohemian violinist, who won distinction in concertis here four years ago, gave a concert in Carnegle Hall on Nov. 30. Kubelith has grown artistically in power. He plays with the same beilliant technique, though wanting in depth of feeling and temperament.

Edwin Grasse, the blind violinist, was heard in recital in Mendelssohn Hall on Nov. 29. Physically infirm, his playing commands respect. The Bach "Prelude and Fugue "was extremely well executed. He was assisted by Dr. Rudolph Procil, the German bartione.

The Philharmonic Society, in Carnegle Hall the afternoon of Dec. 1, was conducted by Victor Herbert.

The Philharmonic Society, in Carnegie Hall the afternoon of Dec. 1, was conducted by Victor Herbert. The music played was of the old familiar variety, which served to show the fine musicanship of the conductor. M. Pugno, the soloist played with his usual excellence.

The operas the past week at the Metropolitan Operariouse were The Queen of Sheba, La Favorita, Die Fiedermaus, Hansel and Gretel, La Glaconda, and Lacia Di Lammermoor. Mr. Bell-Resky, a new baritotie, made his debut in the last named opera. The concert last Sunday evening was attractive, as Humperdink conducted. Offive Fremetad, Jacques Pars, Marcel Jounet, and Otto Goritz sang, Jean Gerardy, the noted Belgian 'celloist, made his first appearance of this season and played most delightfully.

An effort was made to secure the Paderewski prise of $500 by submitting Berlios's The Corsair under the title of The Palisades. The fraud was quickly detected, and a search is being made for the one guilty of plagarism. Arthur Shepheard, of Salt Lake City, won the prise, the title of his composition being "Overture Jovense."

The Victor Herbert concert at the Majestic Theatre last Sunday evening was made bright and interesting by a number of the conductor's own compositions.

Jan Kubelik gave his first recital in Carnegle Hall Dec. 2. His playing was most enthusiastically received, as he always plays faulthessiv, and his tone has largely increased in volume. Agnes Gardner Eyre played a group of plane numbers.

Harriet Behne a New York contralto has recently been engaged as prima donna for the Berlin Opera Comique.

OBITUARY.

Charles F. Shattuck, one of the best known of the older minstrel men and ballad writers in this country, died suddenly of heart disease on the street in New York city on Bec. 1. The funeral services were conducted yesterday by the Elka. Tweaty-drey years ago Mr. Shattuck was a familiar famre in the semicircle of Wambold, Birch and Backur. Billy Rice's, and Billy Emerson's Minstreis. He retired from the stage in 1800, and since that time he has been employed by M. Witmark and Boas in arranging quartette music. The most famous of his sonas is "A Hundred Fathous Deen." which he wrote for himself, and which is still sung by nearly every minstrel basso. Another of his better known songs is entitled "Deen, Deen, Deen.

John J. Bronby died in Toronto, Can., on Nov. 27.

stret basso. Another of his better known sound is entitled "Deep. Deep. Deep."

John J. Brophy died in Toronto, Can.. on Nov. 27. of heart failure. In former years Mr. Brophy managed yentures of his own, but recently he has acted as advance agent or business representative for other managers. At the time of his death he was in Toronto in the interests of The Runaway Boy. Previously he had been in the service of Charles E. Bianey as business-manager of The Curse of Drink. The body was sent to the home of Mr. Brophy's brother at Southampton, L. L. where the funeral was held last Wednesday.

Mrs. James W. Greenhalph. mother of Mrs. Charles C. Lapham (Ada Greenhalph) died at the Rhode Island Huspital. Providence, B. I. on Nov. 24. Mrs. Lepham left the When Women Love company and went to Providence, where she will remain for four vecks before rejoining the commany.

Sarah A. Miles, widow of Charles E. Miles and a sister of Annie Wood, who died a short time ago, died in New York city on Nov. 30.

The Irish Ladies' Choir of Dublin will give incerts at the Academy of Music on Dec. 17 and concerts at the Academy of Music on Dec. 17 and 24.

The Theatre Magazine for December has sixty pages of text and over one hundred pictures, many of which are full-page plates. The colored cover is characteristic of the holiday season and shows Mary Mannering in a snowstorm, picturesquely wrapped in furs. Considerable space is given to George Bernard Shaw. Another article deals with the proposed National Theatre. Mildred Aldrich concludes her interesting papers on "American Singers Abroad," and there is a well-written interview with Augustus Thomas. Henry Tyrrell contributes a sympathetic poem to the memory of Henry Irving, and Benjamin de Casseres has a caustic article on the subject of the encore nuisance. Joseph B. Ames has made a collection of oil letters of famous piayers and gives an interesting selection of them. Margaret Anglin writes of her stage beginnings, and Paul Orleneff and his Russian players are discussed by Kellogg Durland. The pictures include full-page plates of Monna Vanna, The Lion and the Mouse, and Robert Mantell in Richard III. There are also pictures of The Marriage of William Ashe, Oliver Twist, As Ye Sow, Babes in the Wood. Peter Pan, and portraits of Fritzi Scheff. Olga Nethersole. Doris Kean, Maud Fealey, Helnrich Conried, George Bernard Shaw, Maude Lambert. Augustus Thomas, Dorothy Revell, Margaret Illington, and the principal singers at the Metropolitan Opera House.

LEO FEIST-134 W. 37th St., N. Y.

The feature song in The Street Singer, "Dan-ny," introduced by Jessie Mae Hail and her show girls, has been declared a substantial success by the critics wherever Miss Hail has appeared. All restrictions on this song having been removed, many prominent singers have added it to their repertoire.

repertoire.

Charles K. Harris leads by many lengths in the race for bailed successes. This fact is substantiated by the long list of prominent singers who are featuring them and also by the great demand at the music stores for a "Harris bailed." Would You Care?" "Fly Away, Birdie, to Heaven," "I'm Trying So Hard to Forget You," and "Why Don't You Play with Me?" are all in great demand.

The new coon song, "What's the Use of Knocking?" is heard everywhere and is an assured success. The vaudeville stars have taken a liking to it and in consequence it has been heard in nearly all of the vaudeville houses during the past few weeks.

C. L. Partee states that his publications are in great demand, "My Sunburnt Lily" being especially popular, while the high-class ballad, "Just a Picture of You," is being sung by a great many singers, who prefer it to "Violets."

Will Merrigan is this senson doing one of the principal specialties with the Child Slaves of New York, which is winning success on the road. In one of the best situations Mr. Merrigan finds an opportunity to introduce "In the Golden Autumn Time." "When the Harvest Moon Is Shining on the River" and "Down Where the Silv'ry Mohawk Flows."

Mohawk Flows."

Lenox and Sutton's new song. "I'm Trying to Find a Sweetheart," is being sung with success by Adele Ritchie, and "Won't You Take Me Home with You?" is also winning favor.

Etta Williams is playing the Western circuits and writes that "Starlight," "The Leader of the German Band" and "Keep a Little Coxy Corner in Your Heart for Me" are successful with her.

Crawford and Heintzman have been very successful with "Sympathy," "Silver Heels" and "In Dear Old Georgia," while the Avon Comedy Four are using "In Dear Old Georgia" and "My Irish Molly O" with good results.

Four are using "In Dear Old Georgia" and "My Irish Molly O" with good results.

Robins and Trennaman are meeting with success throughout the West with Charles K. Harris' new song, "Dreaming, Love, of You."

Estelle X. Wills has been extremely successful with the new coon song, "Sympathy," and Anna I Aughlin, of The Wizard of Os fame, recently introduced Lenox and Sutton's new song, "Won't You Take Me Home with You?" at the Alhambra Theatre and scored an immediate success. This song is especially suited to her style.

Ail of the Walter Jacob's (Boston) publications are favorites with well-known singers. "My Dusky Rose," by the composer of "By the Water-melon Vine," is especially popular.

Madge Maitland will introduce two new songs at Pastor's Theatre this week—viz.: "My Lovin' Henry" and, by kind permission of Ernest Hogan, of the Rufus Rastus company, she will sing his song, "Is Everybody Happy?" It is safe to say that she will meet with a rousing reception from the Pastor audiences, with whom Miss Maitland is one of the established favorites.

Robert Recker's Band at the Alhambra, in Harsem, has become one of the fixed attractions at song. "Is Everybody Hays, song, "Is Everybody Hays, that she will meet with a rousing that she will meet with a rousing it that she will meet with a rousing method is one of the established favorites. In Harman, has become one of the fixed attractions at at house. Mr. Recker's harmonists render the spular medley overtures of the day in such a anner that they are always sure of a double ensure. One of his recent programmes contains the plant medley are always sure of a double ensure. One of his recent programmes contains the plant of the same can will be some medier, introducing Robinson Crusoe," "Don't Be What You Ain't," I Want My Ten," and "Foolish."

Carl Anderson, with McFadden's Flats, is featuring "My Irish Moily O," while Mary Baker, of the same company, has been very successful with "Bright Eyes, Goodby," and "My Hindoo Man." Ovey and Horner, with More to Be Flitted Than Scorned, are using "Sympathy," "Bright Eyes.

"I'm Dear Old Georgia" and "Dear Old Georgia" and "Dear Old Georgia" with typheid fever at city.

ning Girl, is using the novel song with the short title and a whole lot of melody, entitled "Sym-pathy."

Libbie Arnold Biondell has introduced "Sympathy," the novel coon song, and "Silver Heels," the new number by the writers of "Hiawatha." She is meeting with continued success in vaudeville.

Madge O'Brien continues to use "Keep a Little Cozy Corner in Your Heart for Me" and "My Yankee Irish Girl" with success. Both songs are published by F. B. Haviland Publishing Company.

McCue and Cahiil have taken up Burt and Solman's new song, "Little Girl, You'll Do." They are also rehearsing "I Like Your Way," the new waitz song written by Max S. Witt.

Angela May has made a favorable impression in San Francisco. She has been requested to sing the song success of the late Jessie Bartlett Davis, "Then I Am Yours." She writes as follows to the publisher, C. C. Pilisbury, Minneapolis: "Then I Am Yours is a stage gem. It has all the elements of a lasting success and is all the rage now in 'Frisco."

Jones and Sutton are singing "Keep a Little Cozy Corner in Your Heart for Me" and "Star-light," and report great success with those big song hits, published by the F. B. Haviland Pub-lishing Company.

Freida Lancaster, with The Mascottes, seemed to have Miner's Eighth Avenue audiences hypnotized last week with her rendition of the song "Would You Care?" It is often said that ballads do not go in buriesque houses, but this was not so in her case, as she was encored time and

VAUDEVILLE JOTTINGS.

On account of the New Majestic at Chicago falling to open on schedule, Harry Corson Clarke filled in the week of Nov. 27 at Topeka, Kan., as headline attraction for the Topeka Lodge of Elka, No. 204. On Mr. Clark's arrival he was agreeably surprised to find that the lodge had not only gotten out special paper, but an enormous electric sign stretching across the widest street, announcing him in letters two and a half feet high. On the same bill were Mande Rockwell, Joseph Callahan, Neff and Miller, Green and Barton, Her, Burke and McDonald, and La Mont's animals.

A performer named Marvelous Parsons is said to be able to punch the bag while standing on his head. His other accomplishments consist of walking down a flight of stairs on his cranium and of jumping upside down from a table.

AMERICAN ACADEMY OF DRAMATIC ARTS and EMPIRE THEATRE DRAMATIC SCHOOL

FRANKLIN H. SARGENT, President.

From the article by BRONSON HOWARD in The Century Magazine:

"We have been the first in the world to establish a fully organized school for the training of young men and women for the stage, with a large corps of teachers (twenty-four) for the various branches of the art, with additional lecturers, and with special exercises in each requirement, physical and intellectual. The Conservatoire of Paris immediately comes to the reader's mind. But that excellent institution has no such organization as the most fully organized school of acting in the United States, the oldest of its kind in the world, the AMERICAN ACADEMY OF DRAMATIC ARTS, of which Mr. Franklin H. Sargent is the founder and president."

BY MAIL. MONTHLY PAYMENTS. There are Schools for the teaching of painting, music and either arts. Playwriting is an art. Can you give any same reason why it cannot be tanght? This was the first School of the kind to be established in the world, and it proposes, as it expands, to remain THE first.

SIR HENRY IRVING: "You may be the mightnest greatus that ever breathed, but if you have not studied the ART of writing for the stage you will never write a good acting play."

MR. THOMAS DIXON, JR., a man of greatus, open minded and clear sighted, author of "THE CLANSMAN," a play that is turning people away at every performance throughout the South, kindly writes: "I learned more from your course in one year than I could have gotten in ten years unadded. It is new, not found in books, therough and practical. The student of the drama who neglects this course is missing the opportunity of a life, I could never have written "THE CLANSMAN" without the great of principles I got from you. Our association has been an inspiration to me from the first." Circular.

AT THE COURT THEATRE, WHEELING, W. VA.

Read what the Wheeling Register says:

a know Uncle Tom's Cabin has to come once a trued to come oftener than that, but we have it down to an annual event, so of course one mind going once a year and laughing at the Marka, smiling at Topay's auties with Annt a or weeping large tears at the death of little it has to be done, so in order to have it over Manager Francheim judiciously selected the season for the annual occurrence. The small ad girl were really in their element, and it was difficulty that they were kept in the long line formed in front of the Court yesterday shortly the noon hour. Long before the first curtain ong up the house was filled to capacity. It Leon Washburn has provided a splendid introducing novelties and features of the most tive nature. He has a right to call it a mampreduction; that is just carectly what it is, he scenic effects were splendid and the music apanying the apecialties was very good.
